The Dreamvisions In The Of Enoch:

The Apocalyptic Letter to the Galatians James M. Scott, 2021-05-18 One apocalyptic reading of Paul's letter to the Galatians has been attempted before and is now widely accepted but that reading is not based on a thorough engagement with Jewish apocalyptic traditions of the Second Temple period. In this book James M. Scott argues that there is an essential continuity between Galatians and Paul's Jewish past and that Paul uses the apocalyptic Epistle of Enoch 1 Enoch 92-105 as a literary model for his own letter. Scott first contextualizes the Epistle of Enoch using the entire Enochic corpus and explores the extensive similarities and some significant differences between the Enochic tradition and early Stoicism. Then he turns to deal specifically with Paul's letter to the Galatians showing that despite their obvious differences the two apocalyptic letters have some remarkable features in common as well. This approach to the interpretation of Galatians fundamentally stands to change the way biblical scholars understand Paul's letter and the gospel that he preached. Paul is within Judaism if the net for what is included in Judaism is wide enough to encompass the Enochic tradition.

Jerusalem and the Early Jesus Movement Kyu Sam Han, 2002-05-01 This book deals with the place of the source document Q and its compilers within late Second Temple Judaism with special attention to Q's relationship to the Herodian Temple. The investigation of this perspective is fraught with problems because the passages that are associated with the Temple in Q do not speak with the same voice raising the question of how to reconcile the seemingly positive view with the rather more hostile views. Using a comparative approach Han analyses the essential differences in the two types of positions and concludes that the negative attitude is original while the positive position is due to a later redaction after the First Revolt and the destruction of the Temple.

The Jewish Teachers of Jesus, James, and Jude David A. deSilva, 2012-10-11 Jews have sometimes been reluctant to claim Jesus as one of their own. Christians have often been reluctant to acknowledge the degree to which Jesus' message and mission were at home amidst and shaped by the Judaism of the Second Temple Period. In The Jewish Teachers of Jesus, James, and Jude David deSilva introduces readers to the ancient Jewish writings known as the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha and examines their formative impact on the teachings and mission of Jesus and his half brothers James and Jude. Knowledge of this literature, deSilva argues, helps to bridge the perceived gap between Jesus and Judaism when Judaism is understood only in terms of the Hebrew Bible or Old Testament and not as a living, growing body of faith and practice. Where our understanding of early Judaism is limited to the religion reflected in the Hebrew Bible, Jesus will appear more as an outsider speaking against Judaism and introducing more that is novel. Where our understanding of early Judaism is also informed by the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha, Jesus and his half brothers appear more fully at home within Judaism and giving us a more precise understanding of what is essential as well as distinctive in their proclamation. This comparative study engages several critical issues: How can we recover the voices of Jesus, James, and Jude from the material purporting to preserve their speech? How can we assess a particular text's influence on Jews in early first century Palestine? How can we be sufficiently sensitive to the meanings and nuances in both the text presumed to influence and the text presumed to be influenced so as not to distort the meaning of either. The result is a portrait of Jesus that is fully at home in Roman Judea and Galilee and perhaps an explanation for why these extra biblical Jewish texts continued to be preserved in Christian circles.
