Curing and Healing Andrew Strathern,Pamela J. Stewart,1999 This book is a part of the Ethnographic Studies in Medical Anthropology series Throughout history and throughout the world today problems of health sickness and medical treatment have been intimately interwoven with social cultural and political life generally Medical anthropology deals with these problems from a biocultural perspective recognizing the deep connections between cultural patterns historical change and life processes This book draws on a rich array of ethnographic cases from around the world to demonstrate the complexities of ideas and practices that surround the health of the human body and how health is impacted by the beliefs and practices of the community. The authors make particular use of new materials from their field areas among the Hagen and Duna people in the Highlands of Papua New Guinea. The book is intended as a textbook useable for both anthropology courses and courses for medical students. The topics covered include a survey of earlier works in medical anthropology, regimens of bodily treatment, sex and reproduction, medical pluralism, doctor patient communication, epidemiology, ethnopsychiatry, illness and the emotions, and how diseases such as AIDS have altered the ways in which individuals see themselves and traditional practices alter to accommodate new diseases. Andrew Strathern and Pamela J. Stewart are a husband and wife anthropological team who work in the Highlands of Papua New Guinea and the Lowlands of Scotland. Religion and Magic in the Life of Traditional Peoples Alice B. Child, Irvin Long Child, 1993. Addressing the question 'What does religion do for people?' this text offers a general comparative review of the religions of traditional societies, of their character and the variations among them. It covers mystical power and its sources, animals and plants in religion, supernatural beings, wizardry, illness and healing, death and the afterlife, festivals and more. For sociologists, anthropologists and all those interested in religion and magic. The Need for Understanding Lynette Toni Dowd, 1985. Aboriginal preference for and use of community medical services, interactions and perceptions of care provided by conventional health services, especially the hospital system, role of Aboriginal Medical Services and Aboriginal health care workers. Attitudes of non-Aboriginal health personnel need for adequate training programmes, research carried out in Countrytown part of the North Coast Central District Health Region of N S W. The Recognition of Aboriginal Customary Laws Australia. Law Reform Commission, 1986. Detailed examination of the scope for recognition of customary laws through existing common law rules, human rights and problems of relativity of standards, contact experience, constitutional aspects, marriage and family structures, recognition of traditional marriage, protection and distribution of property, child custody, fostering and adoption, the criminal justice system, customary law offences, police investigation and interrogation, issues of evidence and procedure, including unsworn statements, juries and interpreters, proof of customary law, including scope of expert evidence, taking of evidence, including group evidence, secrecy and privileged communications, customary methods of dispute settlement, special Aboriginal courts and justice schemes, relations with police, traditional hunting, fishing and gathering practices, relevant case law and legislation considered throughout. Aborigines in Australian Society Catherine Helen Berndt, Ronald Murray Berndt, 1985. High school text activity book on modern, traditional and urban Aboriginal living, including economics, relationship with the land, religion and world view, the arts, social issues, social identity. Anthropological Journal of Canada, 1983. Ethnomedicine Pamela Irene Erickson, 2008. Erickson fills this gap by clearly explaining the basic organizing principles that underlie all medical systems, the full range of theories of disease causation, the geographical distribution of medical practices and the historical trends that led to biomedical dominance. Her efficient, balanced approach highlights commonalities among the world's vast and diverse medical systems, making ethnomedicine easier to internalize.

and to apply in clinical settings BOOK JACKET Abstracts of Native Studies ,1986 Background Paper on Aboriginal Customary Laws Reference John Toohey,2004 The World of the First Australians Ronald Murray Berndt,Catherine Helen Berndt,1985 Includes alterations to chapters I and XV chapter XIV is amended and retitled and a previous Appendix has become an amended chapter XVI also includes additional notes and an expanded bibliography
