Sound Of Writing:

The Order of Sounds Francois J. Bonnet, 2019-01-15 This study of the subtlety complexity and variety of modes of hearing maps out a sonorous archipelago a heterogeneous set of shifting sonic territories shaped by the vicissitudes of desire and discourse Profoundly intimate yet immediately giving onto distant spaces both an organ of fear and an echo chamber of anticipated pleasures an uncontrollable flow subject to unconscious selection and augmentation the subtlety complexity and variety of modes of hearing has meant that sound has rarely received the same philosophical attention as the visual In The Order of Sounds Francois J Bonnet makes a compelling case for the irreducible heterogeneity of sound navigating between the physical models constructed by psychophysics and refined through recording technologies and the synthetic production of what is heard From primitive vigilance and sonic mythologies to digital sampling and sound installations he examines the ways in which we make sound speak to us in an analysis of listening as a plurivocal phenomenon drawing on Foucault Deleuze and Guattari Barthes Nancy Adorno and de Certeau and experimental pioneers such as Tesla Bell and Raudive Stringent critiques of the soundscape and reduced listening demonstrate that univocal ontologies of sound are always partial and politicized for listening is always a selective fetishism a hallucination of sound filtered by desire and convention territorialized by discourse and its authorities Bonnet proposes neither a disciplined listening that targets sound itself nor an ocean of sound in which we might lose ourselves but instead maps out a sonorous archipelago a heterogeneous set of shifting sonic territories shaped and aggregated by the vicissitudes of desire and discourse

A History of English Sounds from the Earliest Period Henry Sweet, 2014-08-28 Henry Sweet's work on the sounds of English was first published in 1874 and in this revised version in 1888 Originally intended as a monograph on two sounds only it ended up as a much broader book including an investigation of dialects and medieval and modern English sounds

Writing, Society and Culture in Early Rus, c.950-1300 Simon Franklin, 2002-08-29 This book provides a thorough survey and analysis of the emergence and functions of written culture in Rus covering roughly the modern East Slav lands of European Russia Ukraine and Belarus Part I introduces the full range of types of writing the scripts and languages the materials the social and physical contexts ranging from builders scratches on bricks through to luxurious parchment manuscripts Part II presents a series of thematic studies of the socio cultural dynamics of writing in order to reveal and explain distinctive features in the Rus assimilation of the technology The comparative approach means that the book may also serve as a case study for those with a broader interest either in medieval uses of writing or in the social and cultural history of information technologies Overall the impressive scholarship and idiosyncratic wit of this volume commend it to students and specialists in Russian history and literature alike Awarded the Alec Nove Prize given by the British Association for Slavonic and East European Studies for the best book of 2002 in Russian Soviet or Post Soviet studies papers are concerned with diachronic questions either within individual families or at deeper time depths. Some authors utilize their field data to address problems of general linguistic interest such as reflexivization. A number of papers look at the evidence for contact induced change in multilingual areas. Some of the most exciting contributions to the collection represent significant advances in the reconstruction of the prehistory of such understudied language families as Northeast Caucasian, Tungusic and the baffling isolate Ket. This book will be of interest not only to specialists in the indigenous languages of the former USSR but also to historical and synchronic linguists seeking to familiarize themselves with the fascinating typologically diverse languages from the interior of the Eurasian continent.
