,1895     The Cave Florence M. Weinberg,1986 Taking Plato's Myth of the Cave as its starting point this study traces the archetype of the cave back to its origins in Homer and forward through the ages to Ariosto The symbolism of the Cave is multi faceted and complex and together with its ramifications it forms a metaphoric field that remains relatively stable during Antiquity changing radically in some respects as the Western world shifts from polytheism to Christianity In all contexts and times the cave remains a symbol of unformed or unrefined material being whether viewed as man's animal nature or as Mother Earth herself Although generally seen as a prison or lowly state of being it can be seductive nurturing a source of healing wisdom or inspiration All Western myths present man as earthborn formed of clay by Prometheus or by the Creator in Genesis in the end he returns to the earthy womb tomb of his origin     The Vicomte de Bragelonne Alexandre Dumas,1893     The Beautiful Land John Fulton,1891     Chatterbox ,1876     The outlaw of Iceland, tr.
