Sydney Chapman, Eighty, 1968      Sydney Chapman, Eighty Syun-Ichi Akasofu, Benson Fogle, Bernhard Haurwitz, 1968

Sydney Chapman, eighty: from his friends, ed Syun-Ichi Akasofu,      Sydney Chapman, Eighty Syun-Ichi

Akasofu, Benson Fogle, Bernhard Haurwitz, 1968      Advancing Space Physics: Auroral Substorms and Solar Flares Syun-Ichi Akasofu, 2025-09-23 In this book Syun Ichi Akasofu attempts to explain auroral phenomena particularly their explosive activity known as auroral substorms as a significant electrical discharge within a comet shaped space surrounding the Earth called the magnetosphere For the discharge process its power supply auroral dynamo transmission circuit and finally dissipation observed auroral phenomena are described by following the power flow in terms of electric current The power is accumulated in an early stage but the magnetosphere becomes unstable and releases the accumulated energy explosively It has taken the author 60 years to reach this tentative hypothesis A similar approach is also attempted to explain solar flares also explosive although the difference in the energy involved is very large The author participated in space physics from the early days of the discipline affording him fortunate opportunities to work with pioneering researchers in the field Since then he has worked with many colleagues along the way He describes many stories and episodes including several observational events Like any other field auroral physics and solar physics have well established or widely accepted theories Syun Ichi Akasofu encountered them in most subjects but he believes he could advance one step beyond them by taking the electric current approach      Globalizing Polar Science R. Launius, J. Fleming, D. DeVorkin, 2010-11-22 The International Polar Years and the International Geophysical Year represented a remarkable international collaborative scientific effort that has been largely neglected by historians This groundbreaking collection seeks to redress that neglect and illuminate critical aspects of the last 150 years of international scientific endeavour      Wireless and Empire Aitor Anduaga, 2009-02-19 Although the product of a self proclaimed consensus politics the British Empire was always based on communications supremacy and the knowledge of the atmosphere Using the metaphor of a thread of five pieces representing the categories science industry government the military and the education this is the first book to study the relations between wireless and Empire throughout the interwar period It is also the first to make full use of the abundant archive material and rich sources existing in Britain and the Dominions The book examines the evolving connection between the development of imperial radio communications and atmospheric physics the expansion and strength of the British radio industry and its relationship with the elucidation of the ionosphere and the different extent to which Australia Canada and New Zealand managed to emulate the British model of radio R D in the interwar years The book ends with a highly original and provocative epilogue The realist interpretation of the atmosphere      Essays on the History of Rocketry and Astronautics, 1970      Oxford's Sedleian Professors of Natural Philosophy Christopher Hollings, Mark McCartney, 2023-11-01 Established in the early seventeenth century following a bequest to the university by Sir William Sedley Oxford's Sedleian Professorship of Natural Philosophy is one of the university's oldest professorships. In common with other such positions established around this time such as the Savilian Professorships of Geometry and Astronomy for example its purpose was to provide centrally organised lectures on a specific subject. While the Professorship is now a high profile research post in applied mathematics it has previously been held by physicians, an astronomer and several people in the eighteenth century whose credentials in natural philosophy are much less clear. This edited volume traces the varied history of the chair through the first four centuries of its existence combining specialised contributions from historians of medicine, of science, of mathematics and of universities together with personal reminiscences of some of the more recent holders of the post.

Physics of the Magnetopause Paul Song, B. U. Ö. Sonnerup, M. F. Thomsen, 1995-01-09. Published by the American Geophysical Union as part of the Geophysical Monograph Series Volume 90. This volume provides a comprehensive overview of our current observational knowledge and theoretical understanding of the outer boundary of the Earth's magnetic field, the magnetopause. All mass, momentum and energy transferred from the solar wind plasma flow into the geomagnetic cavity must cross the magnetopause. The magnetopause itself is closely coupled to the high latitude ionosphere. For this reason the volume should be of interest not only to scientists and students concerned with the physics of the magnetopause proper but also to magnetospheric, ionospheric and upper atmospheric workers in general. Much of the material in the volume is relevant to other planetary magnetopauses and as an example of an interface between two collisionless plasmas the Earth's magnetopause is also relevant in solar interplanetary cosmic and laboratory plasma physics.
