The Great Perspectivists:

The Great Perspectivists Gavin Stamp, Royal Institute of British Architects, 1982 The Great Perspectivists Gavin Stamp, Royal Institute of British Architects, 1982 Man-Made Future Iain Boyd Whyte, 2006-12-19 This anthology of essays by a group of distinguished scholars investigates post 1945 city planning in Britain not from a technical viewpoint but as a polemical visual and educational phenomenon shifting the focus of scholarly interest towards the often neglected emotional and aesthetic aspects of post war planning Each essay is grounded in original archival research and sheds new light on this critical era in the development of modern town planning This collection is a valuable resource for architectural social and urban historians as well as students and researchers offering new insights into the development of the mid twentieth century city

Scientific Perspectivism Ronald N. Giere, 2024-05-31 Many people assume that the claims of scientists are objective truths But historians sociologists and philosophers of science have long argued that scientific claims reflect the particular historical cultural and social context in which those claims were made The nature of scientific knowledge is not absolute because it is influenced by the practice and perspective of human agents Scientific Perspectivism argues that the acts of observing and theorizing are both perspectival and this nature makes scientific knowledge contingent as Thomas Kuhn theorized forty years ago Using the example of color vision in humans to illustrate how his theory of perspectivism works Ronald N Giere argues that colors do not actually exist in objects rather color is the result of an interaction between aspects of the world and the human visual system Giere extends this argument into a general interpretation of human perception and more controversially to scientific observation conjecturing that the output of scientific instruments is perspectival Furthermore complex scientific principles such as Maxwell's equations describing the behavior of both the electric and magnetic fields make no claims about the world but models based on those principles can be used to make claims about specific aspects of the world Offering a solution to the most contentious debate in the philosophy of science over the past thirty years Scientific Perspectivism will be of interest to anyone involved in the study of science Shaping the Surface Stephen Kite, 2022-11-17 Shaping the Surface explores the history of modern British architecture through the lens of surface materiality and decoration Picking up on a trait that art historian Nikolaus Pevsner first identified as a national mania for beautiful surface quality this book makes a new contribution to architectural history and visual culture in its detailed examination of the surfaces of British architecture from the middle of the 19th century up to the turn of the 21st century Tracing this continuing sensibility to surface all the way through to the modern era it explores how and why surface and materiality have featured so heavily in recent architectural tradition examining the history of British architecture through a selection of key cultural moments and movements from Romanticism and the Arts and Crafts to Brutalism High Tech Post Modernism Neo Vernacular and the New Materiality Embedded within the narrative is the question of whether such national characters can exist in architecture at all and indeed the extent to which it is possible to identify a British architectural consciousness in an architectural tradition characterised by its continuous importation of theories ideas materials and people from around the globe Shaping the Surface provides a deep critique and meditation on the importance of surface and materiality for architects designers and historians everywhere in Britain and beyond while it also serves as a thematic introduction to modern British architectural history with in depth readings of the works of many key British architects artists and critics from Ruskin and William Morris to Alison and Peter Smithson Eduardo Paolozzi Richard Rogers and Caruso St John

Perspectivism in Archaeology Andrés Laguens, 2024-01-31 Perspectivism in Archaeology explores recurring features in Amerindian mythology and cosmology in the past as well as distinctions and similarities between humans non humans and material culture It offers a range of possibilities for the reconstruction of ancient ontological approaches as well as new ways of thinking in archaeology notably how ancient ontological approaches can be reconciled with current archaeological theories In this volume Andr s Laguens contributes a new set of approaches that incorporate Indigenous theories of reality into an understanding of the South American archaeological record He analyses perspectivism as a step by step theory with clear explanations and examples and shows how it can be implemented in archaeological research and merged with ontological approaches Exploring the foundations of Amerindian perspectivism and its theoretical and methodological possibilities he also demonstrates applications of its precepts through case studies of ancient societies of the Andes and Patagonia

Studies in Renaissance Art John White, 1983

Professor White s work on late medieval and Renaissance Italian art needs no introduction His early articles on Renaissance perspective led on to a book The Birth and Rebirth of Pictorial Space which remains the standard work on the subject His subsequent work on the reconstruction of such major works of art as Donatello s Padua altar and Duccio s Maesta has brought the methodology of reconstructing a damaged or altered work of art to a new level of scholarly seriousness The present publication forms the first part of a two volume edition of Professor White s studies which contains a total of two single and three double articles devoted to reconstructions Between them they cover the methods ranging from documentary and physical investigation to iconographic and stylistic analysis which the author believes should be brought into play in tackling such problems The selection of articles for this first volume has been made on the basis of chronology rather than method The artists and their works dealt with here belong to the period of the Renaissance Since both painting and sculpture are covered equally the initial article on the Paragone the discussion as to primacy among the arts is particularly appropriate The Northern Renaissance is also featured in the articles on Bruegel Additional notes have been added at the end to review the subsequent literature on a number of the works of art dealt with Color in Architectural Illustration Richard Rochon,Harold Linton,1989 Donahoe's Magazine ,1879

Enjoying the Beat of Expression: An Mental Symphony within The Great Perspectivists

In some sort of taken by monitors and the ceaseless chatter of instantaneous communication, the melodic splendor and psychological symphony developed by the written term frequently disappear in to the background, eclipsed by the constant sound and distractions that permeate our lives.
