The Lautsi Papers: Multidisciplinary Reflections on Religious Symbols in the Public School Classroom Jeroen Temberman, 2012-09-06 Increasingly debates about religious symbols in the public space are reformulated as human rights questions and put before national and international judges. Particularly in the area of education legitimate interests are manifold and often collide. Children's educational and religious rights, parental liberties vis-à-vis their children, religious traditions, state obligations in the area of public school education, the state neutrality principle and the professional rights and duties of teachers are all principles that may warrant priority attention. Each from their own discipline and perspective, ranging from legal human rights scholars, legal philosophers, political scientists, comparative law scholars and country specific legal experts, these experts contribute to the question of whether in the present day pluralist state there is room for state symbolism e.g. crucifixes in classroom or personal religious signs e.g. cross necklaces or kirpans or attire e.g. kippahs or headscarves in the public school classroom.

Rethinking Symbolism Dan Sperber, 1975-09-25 The main thrust of this book is to deliver a major critique of materialist and rationalist explanations of social and cultural forms but the in the process Sahlins has given us a much stronger statement of the centrality of symbols in human affairs than have many of our practicing symbolic anthropologists. He demonstrates that symbols enter all phases of social life those which we tend to regard as strictly pragmatic or based on concerns with material need or advantage as well as those which we tend to view as purely symbolic such as ideology, ritual, myth, moral codes and the like.
