Hitchcock at the Source R. Barton Palmer, David Boyd, 2011-09-01 The adaptation of literary works to the screen has been the subject of increasing and increasingly sophisticated critical and scholarly attention in recent years but most studies of the subject have continued to privilege literature over film by taking the literary sources as their starting point Rather than examining the processes by which a particular author has been adapted into a diversity of films by different filmmakers the contributors in Hitchcock at the Source consider the processes by which a varied range of literary sources have been transformed by one filmmaker into an impressive body of work Throughout his career Alfred Hitchcock transformed a variety of literary sources novels plays short stories into what is arguably the most coherent and distinctive narratively stylistically and thematically of all directorial oeuvres After an introduction surveying the nature and diversity of Hitchcock's sources and locating the current volume in the context of theoretical work on adaptation nineteen original essays range across the entirety of Hitchcock's career from the silent period through to the 1970s In addition to addressing the process of adaptation in particular films in terms of plot and character the contributors also consider less obvious matters of tone technique and ideology Hitchcock's manipulation of the conventions of literary and dramatic genres such as spy fiction and romantic comedy and more general problems such as Hitchcock's shift from plays to novels as his major sources in the course of the 1930s

Neo-Victorian Cannibalism Tammy Lai-Ming Ho, 2019-02-04 This Pivot examines a body of contemporary neo Victorian novels whose uneasy relationship with the past can be theorised in terms of aggressive eating including cannibalism Not only is the imagery of eating repeatedly used by critics to comprehend neo Victorian literature the theme of cannibalism itself also appears overtly or implicitly in a number of the novels and their Victorian prototypes thereby mirroring the cannibalistic relationship between the contemporary and the Victorian Tammy Lai Ming Ho argues that aggressive eating or cannibalism can be seen as a pathological and defining characteristic of neo Victorian fiction demonstrating how cannibalism provides a framework for understanding the genre's origin its conflicted ambivalent and violent relationship with its Victorian predecessors and the grotesque and gothic effects that it generates in its fiction
