The New England Magazine ,1895 Bodies and Books Gillian Silverman,2012-07-24 In nineteenth century America Gillian Silverman contends reading and particularly book reading precipitated intense fantasies of communion In handling a book the reader imagined touching and being touched by the people affiliated with that book s narrative world an author a character a fellow reader This experience often led to a sense of consubstantiality a fantasy that the reader the material book and the imagined other were momentarily merged Such a fantasy challenges psychological conceptions of discrete subjectivity along with the very notion of corporeal integrity the idea that we are detached skin bound and autonomously functioning entities It forces us to envision readers not as liberal subjects pursuing reading as a means toward privacy interiority and individuation but rather as communal beings inseparable from objects in our psychic and phenomenal world While theorists have long emphasized the way reading can promote a sense of abstract belonging Bodies and Books emphasizes the intense somatic bonds that nineteenth century subjects experienced while reading Silverman bridges the gap between the cognitive and material effects of reading arguing that the two worked in tandem enabling readers to feel deep communion with objects both human and nonhuman in the external world Drawing on the letters and diaries of nineteenth century readers along with literary works by Herman Melville Frederick Douglass Susan Warner and others Silverman explores the book as a technology of intimacy and ponders what nineteenth century readers might be able to teach us two centuries later Writings on American History,1964 New England Magazine,1895 The Bay State Monthly,1895

Domestic Individualism Gillian Brown,1992-09-30 Gillian Brown s book probes the key relationship between domestic ideology and formulations of the self in nineteenth century America Arguing that domesticity institutes gender class and racial distinctions that govern masculine as well as feminine identity Brown brilliantly alters for literary critics feminists and cultural historians the critical perspective from which nineteenth century American literature and culture have been viewed In this study of the domestic constitution of individualism Brown traces how the values of interiority order privacy and enclosure associated with the American home come to define selfhood in general By analyzing writings by Stowe Hawthorne Melville Fern and Gilman and by examining other contemporary cultural modes abolitionism consumerism architecture interior decorating motherhood mesmerism hysteria and agoraphobia she reconfigures the parameters of both domesticity and the patterns of self it fashions Unfolding a representational history of the domestic Brown s work offers striking new readings of the literary texts as well as of the cultural contexts that they embody
