Domestic Politics and Norm Diffusion in International Relations Thomas Risse, 2016-10-14 This book collects Thomas Risse's most important articles together in a single volume. Covering a wide range of issues: the end of the Cold War, transatlantic relations, the democratic peace, human rights, governance in areas of limited statehood, Europeanization, European identity and public spheres, most recently comparative regionalism, it is testament to the breadth and excellence of this highly respected International Relations scholar's work. The collection is organized thematically: domestic politics and international relations, international sources of domestic change and the diffusion of ideas and institutions, and a brand new introductory essay provides additional coherence. This text will be of key interest to scholars and students of International Relations, European Politics and Comparative Politics. Boehm, 2000    Domestic Constraints and the Breakdown of International Agreements Jeffrey Lantis, 1997-10-28 This book explores how elite commitments to cooperate with international organizations can be supplanted by domestic political constraints. It contends that the most popular explanation for defections from international commitments in the foreign policy analysis literature, the two level game model presented by Robert Putnam, does not fully account for surprising defections from agreements. A new framework is presented which interprets international defections as the product of domestic constraints on foreign policy making that often materialize in the post commitment ratification process: the period when domestic conditions and actors align relative to an international agreement. To explore the dynamics of post commitment politics, eight case studies of the foreign policy decision making process in the Federal Republic of Germany relative to commitments to the European Community and NATO in the 1970s and 1980s are presented. A comparative analysis of the cases demonstrates the importance of modifying the two level game model to account for the sequential and complex nature of the ratification process in the post commitment phase. The study concludes that factionalism in the major party government and inter party coalition differences are primary but often hidden constraints on a leader's ability to uphold international agreements, and it shows how international commitments can awaken dormant domestic constituencies along the road to ratification. This is a work of great significance to scholars and researchers in the areas of foreign policy analysis, international organizations and German politics.    ABC Pol Sci, 2000
