but they didn't flee like the Un Named raiders did. Something seemed to force them back into the fray making them ignore their fright and their agony to attack again. The flame bearers' attack faltered as eyes met eyes and the enemy's ability to withstand the Red Tongue was passed quickly among the Named Firekeepers. Above the commotion Ratha heard an agonizing shriek so raw that she didn't recognize the voice. She whirled thinking one of the Named had been mortally struck. Instead she saw Bira not in the battle but on the edge. Her ears were back, her mouth was open but the sound from her throat wasn't a battle cry but a horrified scream. They're killing the cubs. Bira paused only long enough to gather breath and shriek again even louder. They're attacking the nursery. They're killing the cubs.

The Politics of Motherhood Alexis Jetter, Annelise Orleck, Diana Taylor, 1997. Essays and interviews explode the myth of apolitical motherhood by showing how 20th century women have politicized their role as mothers in a wide range of social contexts.

Long River Joseph Bruchac, 1995. The exciting sequel to Dawn Land in which the story of Young Hunter continues.

The Great Law and the Longhouse William Nelson Fenton, 1998. The Great Law, a living tradition among the conservative Iroquois, is sustained by celebrating the condolence ceremony when they mourn a dead chief and install his successor for life on good behavior. This ritual act reaching back to the dawn of history maintains the League of the Iroquois, the legendary form of government that gave way over time to the Iroquois Confederacy. Fenton verifies historical accounts from his own long experience of Iroquois society so that his political ethnography extends into the twentieth century as he considers in detail the relationship between customs and events. His main argument is the remarkable continuity of Iroquois political tradition in the face of military defeat, depopulation, territorial loss, and acculturation to European technology.
