Nivat,1994 The goal of the AMAST conferences is to foster algebraic methodology as a foundation for software technology and to show that this can lead to practical mathematical alternatives to the ad hoc approaches commonly used in software engineering and development The first two AMAST conferences held in May 1989 and May 1991 at the University of Iowa were well received and encouraged the regular organization of further AMAST conferences on a biennial schedule The third Conference on Algebraic Methodology and Software Technology was held in the campus of the University of Twente The Netherlands during the first week of Summer 1993 Nearly a hundred people from all continents attended the conference The largest interest received by the AMAST conference among the professionals extended to include the administration organizations as well AMAST 93 was opened by the Rector of the University of Twente followed by the Local Chairman Their opening addresses open this proceedings too The proceedings contains 8 invited papers and 32 selected communications The selection was very strict for 121 submissions were received

Realtime Systems Nimal Nissanke,1997 Real Time computing is one of the most demanding and challenging areas in computing It is also of great importance since real time software is indispensable to all ultra reliable and safety critical applications The objective of this book is to provide an introduction to the whole area of real time computing Although it boundaries are not well defined the body of knowledge relevant to the study of real time systems encompasses a whole range of topics There are issues such as clocks specification design and modelling of real time systems which are exclusive to the study of real time systems There are also a number of fairly independent topics having applications outside real time systems but with a definite real time dimension The book supplies a framework for the study of real time systems facilitating a higher level of abstraction and a sharper focus on concepts and issues Invariably this framework relies on mathematics but the mathematics are explained and kept to the minimum Most chapters are self contained and each deals with a separate topic The exceptions are Chapters 2-4 since they contain notations and concepts used elsewhere The occasional cross reference between chapters are intended to underlinethe coherence of the material rather than the dependence of topics

Real-time Systems H. S. M. Zedan,1990 Distributed real time computing systems have become a fast growing area of research and development This book is the result of a forum which brought together a number of practitioners and researchers in the field from both industry and universities The papers are wide ranging covering topics such as logic and semantics of distributed real time computations specification and the design of real time systems and reliability issues for existing real time systems The main features of the book are 1 Recent advances in the theory of real time systems and computations 2 New developments in specification and design methodologies for real time systems 3 Description of existing working real time control systems
