

Objectivity: An Introduction

Students demonstrate an ability to describe an experience after reading historic documents simply from the documents without specifying or putting the experience in a particular (the best or worst) circumstance that is more or less appropriate when good or bad events are experienced. Students will compare the typical circumstances with the circumstances they read across the years of the experience that provide context and, therefore, whether the experience is positive or negative or both. Students then identify elements in each given image, and it becomes evident that a strong feeling (emotion) is involved in the circumstances when specific changes in circumstances (circumstances) occur and subsequent to the given (the circumstances) when the experience is not in the same or another context. In other words, the ability to judge change in the light of the given (the circumstances) is the key to understanding the circumstances.

The next activity, "The Circumstances of the Circumstances" involves an assigned student to read the given image and compare the following elements:

1. The given image is a photograph of a...

2. The given image is a photograph of a...

3. The given image is a photograph of a...

4. The given image is a photograph of a...

5. The given image is a photograph of a...

6. The given image is a photograph of a...
