

Environmental Ethics from the Biblical Perspective

By Dr. Grace Darling,
Asst. Professor,
Department of Philosophy & Religion,
B.H.U., Varanasi

Some People may think that the Bible doesn't speak much about environmental ethics. But the truth is that there are several teachings that had been addressed by the Bible. It will be a great mistake if one thinks the Bible has nothing to do with environmental ethics. There are certain ethical issues the Bible clearly and strongly speaks about environment; creation, caring for the nature, caring even for the animals, meddling of different species and the list can go on and the coming punishment upon those who are ruining the earth. Revelation 11:18 says that God "will bring to ruin those ruining the earth".¹

Man's unnatural treatment of nature and its sad results is a great concern for our planet earth. M.K. Gandhi had rightly pointed out that there is enough on earth for everybody's need, but not for everyone's greed. Selfishness along with thoughtless application of science and technology in large scale in modern era is the main problem. Our Ecological crisis is going from bad to worst. To name a few sad consequences of man's cruel dominion are like environmental problems: global warming, climate change and its dreadful consequences, extinction of species both flora and fauna, ecological imbalance, critical pollution of air, water and earth, environmental degradation in an alarming rate, man-made or induced natural disaster like earthquake, deforestation, disappearance and dwindling down of plants and birds, animals and living creatures' population, erosion, land slide, rapid disappearances of glacier in the Arctic, Antarctic and Himalayan Mountains, low lying countries being flooded, depletion of ozone layer, more diseases and so on are inevitable fact that invite our urgent attention. Even beautiful natural landscapes and fresh rivers are being disturbed by mining, industrial and by so-called developmental works. The real creation is being degraded through human abuse, indifference, and negligence. Right attitudes towards the nature and corrective measures are the need of the hour today. What people do about their ecology depends on what they think about themselves in relation to things around them. Human ecology is deeply conditioned by beliefs about our nature and destiny, that is, by religious belief.
