Social Impact Of Satellite Television In Rural Indonesia:

Social Impact of Satellite Television in Rural Indonesia Godwin C. Chu, Alfian, Wilbur Schramm, 1991 Media Power in Indonesia Ross Tapsell, 2017-07-18 Indonesia is undergoing a process of rapid change with an affluent middle class due to hit 141 million people by 2020 While official statistics suggest that internet penetration is low over 70 million Indonesians have a Facebook account the fourth highest group in the world Jakarta is the Twitter capital of the world with more tweets per minute than any other city around the globe In the past ten years digitalisation of media content has enabled extensive concentration and conglomeration of the industry and media owners are wealthier and more politically powerful than ever before Digital media is a prominent place of contestation between large powerful oligarchs and citizens looking to bring about rapid and meaningful change This book examines how the political agencies of both oligarchs and netizens are enhanced by digitalisation and how an increasingly divergent society is being formed In doing so this book enters this debate about the transformations of society and power in the digital age Imagi-Nations and Borderless Television Amos Owen Thomas, 2005-10-03 An outstanding book on a significant topic I recommend this highly to interested readers Arvind Singhal Professor and Presidential Research Scholar Ohio University Imagi Nations and Borderless Television neatly captures the revolution that television in Asia has gone through over the last 15 years Important for anyone wishing to understand the future of Asian television Andre Nair Chairman and CEO Asia Pacific Mediaedge CIA The book is overdue a useful reference for anyone who is interested in the development of transnational television in Asia Joseph Man Chan Professor of Communications Chinese University of Hong Kong Amos Owen Thomas takes us through this momentous change with an extensively researched and cogently argued book A must read volume for scholars interested in television in Asia and around the world Daya K Thussu Professor University of Westminster The media and communications scene in Asia underwent radical transformation towards the turn of the 20th century The advent in the early 1990s of transnational television via satellite caught Asia unawares much as it has the world over This book brings a transnational and inter disciplinary perspective to understanding the media industry in Southeast South and Northeast Asia Imagi Nations and Borderless Television demonstrates that the globalisation of cultural industries involves not homogenising westernization but postmodern hybridisation Amos Owen Thomas analyses how and why this has occurred within the larger context of economic political social and cultural processes within regions nation states transborder ethnic communities even international diaspora He argues that in the case of transnational television growth was influenced not just by governments and policy makers but also by the strategic management decisions of media owners cable operators satellite providers ad agencies marketers and other players whether pro active or reactive Not only does this book explicate the processes of television globalization it seeks to raise some socio ethical issues that ought to be addressed in managing newer electronic media in these and other developing countries and emerging markets around the world Challenging conventional notions about the cultural imperialism of global media conglomerates this book is widely welcomed by a broad readership ranging from communication and media studies to multinational business policy makers and NGOs Amos Owen Thomas is an Associate Professor of International Business at the Maastricht School of Management Netherlands Political Regimes and the Media in Asia Krishna Sen, Terence Lee, 2008-02-25 This book analyzes the relationship between political power and the media in a range of nation states in East and Southeast Asia focusing in particular on the place of the media in authoritarian and post authoritarian regimes It discusses the centrality of media in sustaining repressive regimes and the key role of the media in the transformation and collapse of such regimes It questions in particular the widely held beliefs that the state can have complete control over the media consumption of its citizens that commercialization of the media necessarily leads to democratization and that the transnational liberal dimensions of western media are crucial for democratic movements in Asia Countries covered include Burma China Indonesia Malaysia Singapore Thailand the Philippines and Vietnam Cultural Change in Rural Indonesia Selo Soemardjan, Kennon Breazeale, 1993 The Television Industry as a Social System in Indonesia Aimee Dawis, 1999 Satellite Television in Indonesia Alfian, Godwin C. Chu, 1981 To See Ourselves Zhongdang Pan, Steven H Chaffee, Godwin C Chu, Yanan Ju, 2019-08-22 This study compares the ever changing cultural values of contemporary China and the contemporary United States Surveying 2000 Shanghai area residents and villagers as well as 2500 US citizens the authors examine to what extent there has been a loss of traditional values in the United States The book looks at value systems in both cultures associated with family relationships kinship ties male female relationships and general interpersonal relationships the fundamental social relationships comprising the social fabric of a society The authors conclude that although both societies have experienced changes in this century they have followed quite different paths In exploring the extent to which this process has differed the authors address the following questions what traditional Confucian values persist in China after 40 years of communist indoctrination and the recent invasion of Western culture How are fundamental human relationships viewed in the United States How do these two societies differ today both in adherence to traditional values and in the dynamics of value change These and many more issues are explored See Me, See You Clarissa Chikiamco, Cheng Jia Yun, 2024-03-26 See Me See You is the world's first exhibition of early video installation of Southeast Asia spanning the early 1980s to the early 1990s This catalogue traces the journeys and evolving identities of the ten artists featured in the show and their pivotal experiments with the moving image which incorporate readymade objects and cathode ray tube television monitors as well as performative and participatory elements Their artworks encapsulate the techniques and materials of their generation and mark the emergence of video installation as a form in the region The publication features interviews essays rare archival images and texts as well as a timeline that highlights the definitive technological moments and inventions that propelled television and video in global and regional contexts International Satellite Broadcasting in South Asia Srinivas R.
