Social Work, Ageing and Society C. Paul Brearley, 2022 First published in 1975 Social Work Ageing and Society provides a basic understanding of the needs of older people in society It deals with the role of the old person in society and attitudes to old age as well as the physical emotional and social needs of the ageing individual It shows that material resources and social work skills can make a great deal of difference to the quality of life and health of elderly citizens and is concerned therefore not only with the process of ageing but also with the validity of techniques of social intervention against a background of limited practical resources for the elderly This book will be of interest to social work students and to members of other caring professions

Ageing and the Care of Older People in Europe Richard Hugman, 1994-08-23 As the population of all European countries ages rapidly understanding the phenomenon of ageing and social responses to old age has become a vital contemporary issue The diverse ways in which old age is seen across Europe are compared and different forms of care for the needs of older people are examined With the demise of large institutions and increasing demands on families and on domiciliary care the question of inter generational relations is seen as a key element in the future of old age It is argued that much is to be learned from cross national comparisons in developing social responses to old age

Social Work with Older People Ann McDonald, 2010-03-08 Social Work with Older People provides an authoritative and practical guide to working with older people in a range of settings It addresses the complexities of individual work with older people as well as work with families groups and the wider community and is not afraid to tackle the challenges as well as opportunities of practice in this area The book begins by explaining the demographic changes that have led to a greying of the general population It goes on to discuss the diversity in experiences of ageing across society and the range of issues which confront older people and those who wish to work proactively with them Clear attention is paid to the processes of assessment care planning and review with readers encouraged to reflect on developing good practice through case studies and exercises Although it has a strong practical emphasis the book also stresses the value of theoretical perspectives with insights from fields such as sociology and psychology woven throughout the book Clear links are also made to policy guidelines and organizational standards without losing sight of the deeper often more complex issues that arise when working with older people Social Work with Older

People will be essential reading for social work students and practitioners but also for others who are interested in the development of practice with older people as citizens and service users Social Work and Health Care in an Aging Society Barbara Berkman, 2003-06 Sixteen chapters by scholars of social work relate the well being of older adults to social work practice and the current model of service delivery Chapters concentrate on issues affecting the health of older adults depression dementia abuse services to specific populations African American women grandparents raising grandchildren the developmentally disabled and professional issues home care case management standardized assessment The implications for training research and policy are highlighted Annotation c 2003 Book News Inc Portland OR booknews com Older Workers in an Ageing Society Phillip Taylor, 2013-09-30 Prolonging working lives is high on the agenda of policy makers in most of the world's major industrialized nations This book explains how they are keen to tackle issues associated with the ageing of populations namely the funding of pension systems Co-creating Digital Public Services for an Ageing Society Juliane Jarke, 2020-09-14 This open access book attends to the co creation of digital public services for ageing societies Increasingly public services are provided in digital form their uptake however remains well below expectations In particular amongst older adults the need for public services is high while at the same time the uptake of digital services is lower than the population average One of the reasons is that many digital public services or e services do not respond well to the life worlds use contexts and use practices of its target audiences This book argues that when older adults are involved in the process of identifying conceptualising and designing digital public services these services become more relevant and meaningful The book describes and compares three co creation projects that were conducted in two European cities Bremen and Zaragoza as part of a larger EU funded innovation project The first part of the book traces the origins of co creation to three distinct domains in which co creation has become an equally important approach with different understandings of what it is and entails 1 the co production of public services 2 the co design of information systems and 3 the civic use of open data The second part of the book analyses how decisions about a co creation project's governance structure its scope of action its choice of methods its alignment with strategic policies and its embedding in existing public information infrastructures impact on the process and its results The final part of the book identifies key challenges to co creation and provides a more general assessment of what co creation may achieve where the most promising areas of application may be and where it probably does not match with the contingent requirements of digital public services Contributing to current discourses on digital citizenship in ageing societies and user centric design this book is useful for researchers and practitioners interested in co creation public sector innovation open government ageing and digital technologies citizen engagement and civic participation in socio technical innovation Inclusive housing in an ageing society Peace, Sheila, Holland, Caroline, 2001-10-24 The housing problems of older people in our society are highly topical because of the growing number of retired people in the population and especially the yet to come increasing number of very old people Government policies on the care of older people have been forthcoming from Whitehall but the issue of housing is just beginning to be seriously addressed This book represents a first attempt at bringing together people from the worlds of architecture social science and housing studies to look at the future of living environments for an ageing society Projecting thinking into the future it asks critical questions and attempts to provide some of the answers It uniquely moves beyond the issues of accommodation and care to look at the wider picture of how housing can reflect the social inclusion of people as they age Inclusive housing in an ageing society will appeal to a wide audience housing health and social care workers including housing officers architects planners and designers community regeneration workers care managers social workers and social care assistants registered managers and housing providers health improvement staff and of course current and future generations of older people on Ageing (London, England), 1989 Opportunities and Challenges in an Ageing Society Wim J. A. van den Heuvel, Raymond Illsley, Anne Jamieson, C. P. M. Knipscheer, 1992 Paperback This is a reflection on the ageing societies in the Western World It is organised in three parts the first on social relationships family and ageing the second on the labour market retirement and the pension system and the last part on health care and ageing The emphasis is on the opportunities and challenges and not on the problems of an ageing society In contrast to many studies in this area the editors do not like to dramatise the future of ageing societies and prefer to look at the process in proportion The editors are of the opinion that there is a cumulation of negative scenarios without any perspective on the possible opportunities because of the changing age structure of society WHO Kobe Centre International Meeting on Community Health Care in Ageing
