Integrating Disability Content in Social Work Education Stephen F. Gilson,2002

Countering Discrimination in Social Work Bogdan Lesnik,1998

Isn't there enough talk about discrimination Yes indeed That is why we have to begin countering discrimination We need strategies that will make it inoperative or at least limit its scope But first we need to think how discrimination works and identify it where it works It concerns far more than mere procedural hitches for which a few legal provisions will do

Countering Discrimination Volume 1998 of International Perspectives in Social Work yearbook brings papers that analyse mechanisms of social discrimination in a variety of such locations and bring proposals for counter strategies This is essential in social work if causes rather than manifestations of the problems it is concerned with are to be addressed But it is also essential that everybody who opposes discrimination recognise its subtle and dispersed ways of operation in the human services regardless of their own basic field of work In this respect the book will be useful to a very wide audience

Social Work in the Wake of Disaster David Tumelty,1990

Disability & the Politics of Education Susan Lynn Gabel, Scot Danforth,2008

Disability and the Politics of Education An International Reader is a rich resource that deals comprehensively with the many aspects of the complex topic of disability studies in education For nearly two decades global attention has been given to education as a human right through global initiatives such as Education for All EFA and the Salamanca Statement Yet according to UNESCO reaching the goals of EFA remains one of the most daunting challenges facing the global community Today millions of the world's disabled children cannot obtain a basic childhood education particularly in countries with limited resources Even in the wealthiest countries many disabled children and youth are educationally segregated from the nondisabled particularly if they are labeled with significant cognitive impairment International agencies such as the United Nations and the World Bank have generated funds for educational development but unfortunately these funds are administered with the assumption that west is best thereby urging developing countries to mimic educational policies in the United States and the United Kingdom in order to prove their aid worthiness This McDonaldization of education reproduces the labeling resource allocation and social dynamics long criticized in disability studies The authors in this volume explore these subjects and other complexities of disability and the politics of education In doing so they demonstrate the importance and usefulness of international perspectives and comparative approaches

Community Empowerment Gary Craig, Marjorie Mayo, 1995 This book reviews contemporary campaigns for community participation and empowerment with examples from Europe the USA Australia South and Southeast Asia Latin America and Africa It critically assesses developments in the mixed economy of welfare in terms of their relevance for self help and community participation It also considers the concept of empowerment and its relation to public policy and developments within social movements The case studies demonstrate the continuing struggle of communities to take more control over the key issues they confront including poverty and the impact of international economic restructuring
