

N^F NEW FREEDOM

A photograph of the exterior of a building at dusk. The building features a large, dark, cantilevered roof structure that extends over the entrance area. On the underside of this overhang, the text "N^F NEW FREEDOM" is displayed in large, white, serif capital letters. Below the overhang, the entrance is illuminated by warm, yellow lights. The building's facade is a light-colored, textured material. To the left of the building, several tall palm trees stand against a sky with scattered clouds. In the foreground, there is a paved area with a red-painted curb and a small, white, decorative fire hydrant. The overall atmosphere is modern and sophisticated.

eventually led to the creation of the Federal Reserve System during Wilson's presidency. Tariff Reform: Wilson advocated for tariff reductions to lower the cost of goods for consumers and promote international trade. Labor Rights: He supported the rights of workers to organize and bargain collectively, which laid the groundwork for later labor laws. Government Regulation: Wilson believed in a more active role for the government in regulating various aspects of the economy, such as the protection of consumers, workers, and the environment. The New Freedom reflected the broader progressive movement of the early 20th century, which sought to address the social and economic challenges arising from industrialization and the growth of big corporations. Woodrow Wilson's presidency saw the implementation of many of these ideas, and his policies had a lasting impact on American governance and society.
