Social Innovations For Development:

Social Innovations for Development C. G. Heden,A. S. King,2016-01-26 Social Innovations for Development is a collection of papers that discusses the importance of social innovations that can effectively accommodate scientific and technological advances The coverage of the title includes the need for social innovation social scientific and technical inventions in a developing world and the work of the international foundation for social innovation The selection also covers the linkage between technological and social innovation and the institute for scientific and technological cooperation The book will be of great interest to individuals who have a keen interest in technological and scientific progress Strategies and Best Practices in Social Innovation Marta Peris-Ortiz,Jaime Alonso Gómez,Patricia Marquez,2018-05-31 This book examines the different ways companies can develop and design social innovation Combining technological and social perspectives the contributors present emerging research on social innovation from different sectors such as entrepreneurship education and energy Collectively the authors demonstrate the ways in which social innovation can drive sustainability and development in regions around the world All societies are characterized by their political economic and social institutions as well as by how they utilize technology The social innovations with the highest importance are those which modify existing institutions or create new ones and based on their magnitude they can be considered as radical or incremental For example when Joseph Chamberlain encouraged workers to organize in order to achieve universal male suffrage in Great Britain in 1885 this was a considered a radical innovation for British society which in turn changed its political framework Social innovations may be based on intelligence and commitment on technology or on social entrepreneurship in its most open forms In addition social innovations can be classified into those which correspond to an entire country or region a field e g education or a sector e g entrepreneurship technology social reform Featuring contributions on topics such as agro food smart cities higher education gender equality and sports this book is ideal for academics students scholars professionals and policy makers in the areas of innovation entrepreneurship sustainability and regional development Social Innovation and Territorial Development

,2009 Social Innovation Carmen Ruiz Viñals,Carmen Parra Rodríguez,2013-08-21 Social innovation can be simply defined as the new ideas and initiatives that make it possible to meet our society s challenges in areas such as the environment education employment culture health and economic development It is currently becoming increasingly important as a central concept for social theories and politics This edited volume brings together interdisciplinary contributions which examine the complex interrelation between innovation and social problems a link which has been surprisingly underexplored in academia and practice thus far Social Innovation New Forms of Organisation in Knowledge Based Societies examines the mutual interdependence of innovation processes and social affairs This interdependent relationship is characterised by a high degree of complexity which stems on the one hand from the true uncertain character of innovation and on the other hand from the different time scales in both domains The alliance between innovation and social policy is highly relevant to the challenges which we are facing in the 21st century such as resource scarcity ageing societies and climate change All of these issues demand substantial continuous and sustainable structural change to maintain international competitiveness Social change can only be understood by improving our knowledge about the impact of innovation processes in their co evolutionary alliance with social evolution The purpose of this book is to increase awareness of social participation among civil society organisations SMEs governments and research institutions in order to promote economic political and social changes that enhance collective welfare This volume offers a key starting point for those looking to further explore this important realm of social research

What to Make of Social Innovation? Towards a Framework for Policy Development Carlo Borzaga, Riccardo Bodini, 2012 Over the past few years there has been a growing interest on the part of the scientific community and more recently of policy makers in the concept of social innovation The notion of social innovation is particularly appealing in light of the difficulties facing traditional welfare systems and more broadly a development model essentially based on only two actors the market and the state that is finding it increasingly difficult to meet the growing and diversified needs of society However the uses and definitions of the concept are so disparate that it is becoming increasingly difficult to assess whether social innovation is in fact a helpful construct or just another fad that will soon be forgotten This paper focuses in particular on the usefulness of the concept of social innovation for the purposes of policy development Therefore the goal is not to find the true definition of social innovation Rather it is to search for a useful framework on which to build sound policies that could tackle the complex social issues that have caused scholars and practitioners to pay attention to social innovation in the first place Building on a review of the literature and in particular on a paper by Eduardo Pol and Simon Ville we propose an approach that recognizes a degree of overlap between social innovation and business innovation and argue that social innovation policy should focus on the subset of social innovation that does not overlap with business innovation This is due to the fact that social innovations that overlap with business innovations tend to be profitable and as such the market is amply equipped to supply them perhaps with the support of existing business innovation policies Pure social innovations on the other hand are not driven by a profit motive and thus need either to be subsidized or to be developed by enterprise types that are not motivated by profit maximization Indeed by focusing on the characteristics of different enterprise types we find that not for profit enterprises with an explicit social mission are ideally suited to develop pure social innovation even in the absence of public sector intervention The paper then concludes that targeted policies should be more mindful of the role of different types of enterprise in generating social innovation and more broadly that the debate on social innovation should be more closely aligned with the debate on the pluralism of enterprise forms

Social Innovation Thomas Osburg, René Schmidpeter, 2013-06-04 Social Innovation is becoming an increasingly important topic in our global society Those organizations which are able to develop business solutions to the most urgent social and ecological challenges will be the leading companies of tomorrow Social Innovation not only creates value for society but will be a key driver for business success Although the concept of Social Innovation is discussed globally the meaning and its impact on the development of new business strategies is still heavily on debate This publication has the goal to give a comprehensive overview of different concepts in the very innovative field of Social Innovation from a managerial as well as from a theoretical and social perspective Over 30 leading thinkers in the field of Innovation Strategic Management and Organizational Development give a well structured inside on the latest developments and progress in the field of Social Innovation Thereby the authors not only develop a comprehensive and unique analysis on the state of the art of social innovation but also give practical advice and information to business leaders on how to apply the latest management thinking on Social Innovation to daily business decisions This publication has the intention to become a milestone in the further development of the concept of Social Innovation as well as to further stimulate new business strategies necessary to overcome world most pressing social and ecological challenges Social Innovations in Post-Soviet Countries Bakhrom Radjabov,2022-06-01

This book evaluates the evolution of social innovation in post Soviet Central Asia Eastern Europe and Caucasus Following the dissolution of the USSR organisations such as the UNDP have encouraged local communities and governments to innovate in order to find solutions to existing social problems This book demonstrates that progress with social innovations has varied with countries with low government support such as Uzbekistan struggling whereas countries with better government support and a more active civil society such as Armenia and Ukraine have seen more positive results Covering the period 2012 2020 and a broad range of countries including Kazakhstan Kyrgyzstan Tajikistan and Uzbekistan Moldova Ukraine Azerbaijan Armenia and Georgia this book provides an impressively broad ranging critical analysis of post Soviet social innovation Including social innovations emerging as a result of the Covid 19 outbreak this will be an important comparative study for researchers and practitioners working on social innovation and to those with an interest in post Soviet development Introduction to Social Innovation Gilberto

Marzano,2017-02-08T00:00:00+01:00 It is commonly shared the idea that social innovation is the creation of social value by solving social problems Accordingly social innovation can be deemed to be the production of new solutions to social problems in a more effective efficient and sustainable way Analyzing the consequences of the current economic crisis and its impact on health care services there is who has advanced the idea that social innovation can constitute an effective strategy to counter balance the retrenchment of public social provision This book tackles the multiple facets of social innovation focusing on its relationship with the new technologies and the new forms of entrepreneurship Social Innovation, the Social Economy and World Economic Development Denis Harrisson,Reynald Bourque,György Széll,2009 The world of work and labour is in a permanent transformation affecting the various social groups in the different parts of the world quite unequally Social innovations related to the idea of economic progress and well being tackle the problems of employment leading to social exclusion and poverty as a consequence of the extreme positioning in favour of economic performance An alternative
