

A black and white photograph of three people—two men and one woman—looking upwards with expressions of awe or contemplation. They are positioned in a diamond-shaped frame. The man on the left has a beard and is looking towards the upper left. The woman in the center is looking straight up. The man on the right is wearing a cap and looking towards the upper right. The background appears to be a textured wall or ceiling.

Setting in the East David Creelman, 2003-03-03 He shows that realism arrived comparatively late to the Maritime provinces and argues that the emergence of a realist style corresponded with a dramatic period of economic and cultural disruption during which the Eastern provinces were transformed from one Canada's most developed prosperous and promising regions into one characterized by chronic underemployment and underdevelopment The region is thus torn between its memory of an earlier more traditional social order and its present experience as a modern industrial society These tensions are embedded in the Maritime character and have affected not only the lives of its people but the imaginations and texts of its writers The stories of Thomas Raddall Hugh MacLennan Charles Bruce Ernest Buckler Alden Nowlan Alistair MacLeod Donna Smyth Budge Wilson and David Adams Richards have been deeply influenced by the cultural shifts they have observed In the last two decades a host of new literary voices has emerged and Creelman also explores the works of such writers as Ann Marie MacDonald Lynn Coady Nancy Bauer Deborah Joy Corey Carol Bruneau Alan Wilson Leo McKay and Sheldon Currie He shows that these Maritime artists share a common regional identity that shapes their narratives as they find their own paths through the tensions which envelop them The Oracle of reason: or, Philosophy vindicated (ed. by C.
