The term Work life balance has become very popular over the past decades due to several reasons For example the demographic change and business pressure to be the employer of choice in order to attract a decreasing number of skilled workforce cause companies all around the world to offer Work life balance policies that aim at supporting their employees in creating a healthy and productive balance between their working and private life Moreover certain differences between cultures in terms of the employees Work life balances and the employers approaches to it can be noticed As this dissertation concentrated on the differences between the U S and German culture it compared a questionnaire filled out by an American employee working for an American company to a pilot study of German companies Differences were discovered in the attitude towards the Worklife balance of the leadership within a company Also the offerings of sport and leisure facilities differed as well as family friendly policies Finally the dissertation came to the conclusion that Work life balance policies have to be customised to the respective culture of the employees in order to be really efficient
