The Drowning Fish:

Drowning Fish Swati Chanda,2015-02-27 And what of those whose roots are planted deep in the soil of their land What does it take for them to thrive transplanted East Pakistan 1950 Nayantara flees riot ridden Narayanbari with her two daughters leaving behind her life as she knew it The only link to her past is the legacy she is determined to leave her granddaughter Neelanjana the precious pieces of teakwood furniture that oppress the rooms of her tiny flat in Calcutta where she arrives to take refuge Decades later Neelanjana leaves for the US in a bid to forge an independent life But she discovers as she is gradually bruised by alienation and heartbreak in a country far from her own that the burden of her family's history is one she cannot slough off easily that rejection and violence can stretch across geographies and generations and that home is simply the place where one finally learns to accept oneself Compelling and deeply affecting Drowning Fish is about lives trapped in the tumult of motivations and desires and forged inescapably by events beyond their control The Drowning Fish John G. Hall,2004-12-01 Already a staple in multiple literary publications John G Hall's poetry is a stunning contemplation of both the mundane and the extraordinary With his debut collection Hall makes an undeniably strong impression experimenting with images of religion elements horror and everyday life in his reflections on the world and the people within John G Hall's poetry has the gritty edge of a contemporary visionary in active development This is an important book by one of England's most important younger poets Jack Hirschman author of Front Line Selected Poems His work has a spiky immediacy and an articulate ache that reminds me of Lawrence and sometimes the American Beats Todd Swift editor of 100 Poets against the War With each line a brush stroke and framed by what he makes seem acres of white these poems strive towards the condition of poetic quanta At their best they urge themselves into distinctive intensity Mario Petrucci author of Heavy Water [Like a Drowning Fish. Robertson,2023-11-14 Caregiving is the most humbling yet rewarding of all callings if you go into it with your eyes wide open Like all life altering events it requires research and support from both professionals and those in your circle who have already grown into this role For the Love of God and Family is intended to draw you into the reality of what God has chosen to bless you with during this chapter in your life Boy the idea of this as a blessing from God just seems wrong Yet you will see how approaching this time in your life with a complete sense of what your role is and who your care receiver is in this new relationship will help you come alongside your loved one with understanding and compassion Your heart will forever be tender toward this season in your loved one s life This book is all about jump starting this journey by helping you find the confidence and courage to step out and give yourself the freedom to find your joy and give your care receiver permission to feel his or her own joy That in its own right is a God given blessing beyond anything you have ever experienced For the Love of God and Family will give you the tools you need to guard your heart and protect that joy while living in this precious season of life You will see where it will be necessary to console yourself to flexibility toward ever changing challenges Martha will use this book to help you discover the hard questions that need to be asked and the answers you should expect to gather the information and help you are going to require Martha draws from scripture support and confidence while sharing her story
