Excerpt from The Desert Trail The slow rolling winter s sun rose coldly far to the south riding up from behind the saw toothed Sierras of Mexico to throw a silvery halo on Gadsden the border city A hundred miles of desert lay in its path a waste of broken ridges dry arroyos and sandy plains and then suddenly as if by magic the city rose gleaming in the sun It was a big city for the West and swarming with traffic and men Its broad main street lined with brick buildings and throbbing with automobiles ran from the railroad straight to the south until at a line it stopped short and was lost in the desert That line which marked the sudden end of growth and progress was the border of the United States the desert was Mexico And the difference was not in the land but in the government As the morning air grew warm and the hoar frost dripped down from the roofs the idlers of the town crept forth leaving chill lodgings and stale saloons for the street corners and the sun About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
