The Democratization Of Communication:

The Democratization of Communication Philip Lee, 1995 This text argues that communication is the foundation on which a society is based and the means by which it maintains political economic and social relationships with other societies Issues covered include who owns information and what the cultural implications of the information age will be Advocacy Coalitions and Democratizing Media Reforms in Latin America Christof Mauersberger, 2015-07-27 This book examines democratizing media reforms in Latin America The author explains why some countries have recently passed such reforms in the broadcasting sector while others have not By offering a civil society perspective the author moves beyond conventional accounts that perceive media reforms primarily as a form of government repression to punish oppositional media Instead he highlights the pioneering role of civil society coalitions which have managed to revitalize the debate on communication rights and translated them into specific regulatory outcomes such as the promotion of community radio stations The book provides an in depth comparative analysis of media reform debates in Argentina and Brazil analyzing Chile and Uruguay as complementary cases supported by original qualitative research As such it advances our understanding of how shifting power relations and social forces are affecting policymaking in Latin America and beyond Democratizing Communication?

Mashood Bailie, Dwayne Roy Winseck, 1997 This volume considers the implications of recent economic and technological restructuring for public communication It explores how instrumental conceptions of communication divorced from concepts of citizenship power and democracy frustrate the potentials of the technologies Democratization of Mass Communication in Nigeria Emman Akene, 1992 The Death of Media and the Fight to Save Democracy Danny Schechter, 2005 In The Death of Media Emmy Award winning journalist Danny Schechter offers a blistering polemic about the unprecedented interest in media reform from protests by Pope John Paul II to local radio DJs that signals the end of media as we know it But Schechter doesn't tell the story you might expect that of the blogosphere replacing daily newspapers Rather he chronicles new players including Google a diverse world of independent outlets and media reform movement while showing how they have carefully organized around issues in traditional media Convinced that we can't fix America without fixing the media The Death of Media shows why the fight to change our media is bigger than any political fight yet

Remaking Media Robert Hackett, William Carroll, 2006-07-29 Two renowned authors in the field take an innovative approach and present this unique and timely book which examines the democratization of the media and the activism directed towards challenging and changing media content practices and structures Democratic Communications in the Information Age Janet Wasko, Vincent Mosco, 1992-09 This analysis begins with a discussion of theoretical issues involved in democratic participatory alternative and community communications In light of these concepts the authors explore various alternative developments in new communications and information technologies as well as various social movements in local national and international settings The issue to critical communications researchers is not just technology and its ability to process information but who owns it who controls it and who has access to it In short who presses the buttons The struggle for alternative democratic solutions will continue and this book is an attempt to engage in such struggle Media, Democratization and Identity Rino Zhuwarara, Kimani Gecau, Mariana Drag, 1997 Media Education, Communication, and Public Policy Keval J. Kumar, 1995 Democratization and the Media Slavko Splichal, John Hochheimer, Karol Jakubowicz, 1990 Perspectives on Media, Culture and Democracy in Zimbabwe, 1998 Communication for and Against Democracy Marc Raboy, Peter Aurelius Bruck, 1989 Addresses different aspects of the communication question bringing out the ways in which communication serves at times as an instrument of repression and domination and at other times as a support for human emancipation Essays written by international scholars and activists These essays do much to increase reader awareness of the mediatization of society Choice Communication and Democracy Slavko Splichal, Janet Wasko, 1993 The 1980s witnessed a rapid growth of communication technology and an immense expansion of new media around the globe The development of new information and communication technologies has emphasized again the importance of economic social political and cultural institutions associated with the definitions of new technologies Many of the traditional conceptions of the relation of the media to democracy were predicated upon a certain perception of communication technology and the major contemporary debates related to democratization have to do again with the deployment of technologies How do all these developments affect society How is the communications explosion related to democracy What are the implications for the social functions of communications people's activities consciousness and values media ownership and control both nationally and internationally These are some of the questions discussed in this volume Theoretical Approaches to Participatory Communication Thomas L. Jacobson, Jan Servaes, 1999 This text identifies and explores the relevance of development communication theory The chapters address community participation communication and culture from specific contemporary perspectives and raise for discussion a number of associated methodological and metatheoretical issues International Journal of Communication, 2004 Conversations on Communication Ethics Karen Joy Greenberg, 1991 Media, Communication and the Struggle for Democratic Change Katrin Voltmer, Christian Christensen, Irene Neverla, Nicole Stremlau, Barbara Thomass, Nebojša Vladislavljević, Herman Wasserman, 2019-08-28 This book investigates the role of media and communication in processes of democratization in different political and cultural contexts Struggles for democratic change are periods of intense contest over the transformation of citizenship and the reconfiguration of political power These democratization conflicts are played out within an increasingly complex media ecology where traditional modes of communication merge with new digital networks thus bringing about multiple platforms for journalists and political actors to promote and contest competing definitions of reality The volume draws on extensive case study research in South Africa Kenya Egypt and Serbia to highlight the ambivalent role of the media as force for democratic change citizen empowerment and accountability as well as driver of polarization radicalization and manipulation Summary of the Studies and Discussions Unesco. Advisory Panel on the
