Service-Learning and Writing: Paving the Way for Literacy(ies) through Community Engagement Isabel Baca, 2012-11-20
Service learning and Writing Paving the Way for Literacy(ies) through Community Engagement discusses service learning as a teaching and learning method and its integration with writing. The various authors from different disciplines and institutions present service learning as a means of having students practice writing in real world settings and they show how relationship building and partnerships between higher education and diverse communities produce benefits for all involved: the students, faculty, administrators, and the communities themselves. This volume demonstrates how writing instruction and/or writing practice can complement community engagement and outreach at local, national, and international contexts. Through different cross-cultural contexts and academic disciplines, the various authors explore reflection, assessment, internalization, diversity, and multiple literacies and their importance when integrating service learning in higher education and community literacy.

Engaging 21st Century Writers with Social Media Bryant, Kendra N., 2016-08-23
Basic composition courses have become a fundamental requirement for the majority of university degrees available today. These classes allow students to enhance their critical thinking, writing, and reading skills; however, frequent use of technology and online activity can be detrimental to students' comprehension. Engaging 21st Century Writers with Social Media is a pivotal reference source for the latest research on the integration of social media platforms into academic writing classes, focusing on how such technology encourages writing and enables students to grasp basic composition skills in classroom settings. Highlighting emerging theoretical foundations and pedagogical practices, this book is ideally designed for educators, upper-level students, researchers, and academic professionals.

Composing Health Literacies Michael Madson, 2023-03-31
This edited collection examines engagements between health literacies and undergraduate writing instruction, providing research, case studies, and practical guidance on developing an interdisciplinary writing pedagogy. Bringing together works from scholars in rhetoric and composition, technical communication, UX, public health, nursing, and writing center administration, this collection showcases a range of evidence-based practices for composing, teaching, and assessing health literacies, which the readers can apply to their own contexts. Using non-specialist language accessible to instructors from a variety of backgrounds, the chapters consider the use of writing assignments including image analyses, public service announcements, podcasts, health education materials, illness narratives, public presentations, research proposals, and journal articles. The book offers a holistic overview by profiling entire writing programs, both online and face-to-face, that teach health literacies across their curricula. This evidence-based collection is essential reading for scholars and instructors in rhetoric and composition, writing in the health professions, technical communication, and health humanities, and can be used as a supplemental textbook for pedagogy courses in these fields.

Collaborative Writing Bruce W. Speck,1999-07-30 Collaborative writing has attracted much attention in the last 25 years though it eludes clear definition In its simplest sense it is writing done by more than one person But in a broader sense even a work by one author involves collaboration The author typically builds on the work of others and revises the writing in response to feedback This feedback can come from a student s peers or teacher in a classroom setting it can come from experts and editors who assess a scholar s writing or it can come from colleagues and clients in the world of business This bibliography is a guide to research on collaborative writing published from the early 1970s to 1997 Included are nearly 1000 annotated entries for books articles reports bibliographies and other materials These entries are clustered in two broad parts each of which contains numerous topical sections The first part of the book is devoted to collaborative writing in academic settings and covers such topics as classroom issues peer review and tutoring the role of computers and technology particular types of classes and ethical and gender concerns The second looks at collaborative writing in nonacademic settings Included are works on corporate acculturation group dynamics policies and procedures industry university collaboration and technical reports Entries are arranged alphabetically in each section and detailed author and subject indexes provide easy access to the material Transactions of the American Mathematical Society ,1900 Reflection In The Writing Classroom
