Introducing Sociology Using the Stuff of Everyday Life Josee Johnston,Kate Cairns,Shyon Baumann,2017-01-06 The challenges of teaching a successful introductory sociology course today demand materials from a publisher very different from the norm. Texts that are organized the way the discipline structures itself intellectually no longer connect with the majority of student learners. This is not an issue of pandering to students or otherwise seeking the lowest common denominator. On the contrary, it is a question of again making the practice of sociological thinking meaningful, rigorous and relevant to today's world of undergraduates. This comparatively concise, highly visual and affordable book offers a refreshingly new way forward to reach students using one of the most powerful tools in a sociologist's teaching arsenal: the familiar stuff in students' everyday lives throughout the world: the jeans they wear to class, the coffee they drink each morning, or the phones their professors tell them to put away during lectures. A focus on consumer culture seeing the strange in the familiar is not only interesting for students; it is also the authors suggest, pedagogically superior to more traditional approaches. By engaging students through their stuff, this book moves beyond teaching about sociology to helping instructors teach the practice of sociological thinking. It moves beyond describing what sociology is so that students can practice what sociological thinking can do. This pedagogy also posits a relationship between teacher and learner that is bi-directional. Many students feel a sense of authority in various areas of consumer culture and they often enjoy sharing their knowledge with fellow students and with their instructor. Opening up the sociology classroom to discussion of these topics validates students' expertise on their own life worlds. Teachers in turn gain insight from the goods, services and cultural expectations that shape students' lives. While innovative, the book has been carefully crafted to make it as useful and flexible as possible for instructors aiming to build core sociological foundations in a single semester. A map on pages ii-iii identifies core sociological concepts covered so that a traditional syllabus as well as individual lectures can easily be maintained. Theory, method and active learning exercises in every chapter constantly encourage the sociological imagination as well as the doing of sociology.

Environment and Society Charles L. Harper, 1996. This is a core textbook for courses on environmental issues taught in sociology or geography or environmental sciences departments.

Pandemic Economy: Covid-19 effects and consequences in the first year Charis Vlados, Bachar Fakhry, 2021-12-01. A repositioning of the theoretical instruments of development and growth in the context of economics and political economy that we have at our disposal to date seems necessary especially after the structural transformation caused by the COVID 19 socio-economic and pandemic crisis. Specifically, the overcoming of the COVID 19 era of crisis seems to depend on how we will manage to re-perceive the theory of economic development and apply its proposals in new economic policies in global terms. In this context, this article examines whether the conceptual and therapeutic foundations of development economics have today the necessary potential to cope with structural changes caused by the ongoing global socio-economic crisis. We assess the current debate in the literature of economic development versus economic growth and conclude that a new comprehensive and evolutionary orientation to understanding economic development seems necessary to respond to new global challenges for the post-COVID 19 era. We propose a multidisciplinary and evolutionary conceptual direction that suggests the multi angle understanding of diverse historical configurations We argue that all socio economic mutations accelerated by the current pandemic crisis have systemic and evolutionary content and effects and cannot be reliably perceived as mere coincidences of quantities and growth performances In this way we can only disagree with any static and linear approach to the current crisis that directly or indirectly leads to reproducing the rigid enclosure of the analysis in partial specializations of economics On the contrary we counter propose a theoretical response of evolutionary type to assess the contemporary theory of economic development and the political economy in the post COVID 19 era as an interdisciplinary crossroads for all socio economic sciences The Covid 19 pandemic raised a few issues concerning how market participants react to a global pandemic The pandemic was a black swan event on some levels there had been few pandemics that have had such a global impact the Spanish Flu of the late 1910s and 1957 influenza Moreover global interconnection means that the Covid 19 pandemic was able to spread across the globe quickly thus indicating that extreme measures were needed to bring it under control The policies taken by governments around the world had a significant adverse impact on the economy It is with these factors in mind that we research the psychology of the market participants during the pandemic Conversely we introduce a new model of behaviour during uncertainty which explains how market participants react during crises such as the Covid 19 pandemic The model analyses the psychological issues both emotional and cognitive influencing the pandemic We found that like any other crises market participant reacted to government actions and announcements and the impact on the economy Therefore leading to the old issue of miscommunication and insufficient actions The New Zealand economy is in a parlous state and not simply because of the economic fall out associated with the pandemic For decades now New Zealand has been falling further and further behind its OECD partners with institutional inefficiencies poor policy making and the almost willful refusal of successive governments to admit to let alone confront mounting economic problems all combining to place us on the edge of a deep and lasting economic downturn Across a broad plethora of areas and key economic indicators New Zealand lags behind almost every other advanced country against which it has traditionally measured itself These areas include the three pillars of social wellbeing education health and social welfare housing tax productivity and debt In every case we are either falling behind outcomes achieved in other countries education health productivity entrenching inequality through our failure to cater for the needs of our most vulnerable housing health education social welfare tax or failing to prepare adequately for looming economic and social costs including those incurred by a rapidly aging population If ignored these problems will precipitate a crisis that may make the burden of recovering from Covid 19 pale by comparison superannuation health debt In its much anticipated post Covid budget the Labour Government needs to not only provide a clear blueprint for helping those who have been adversely affected by the pandemic and New Zealand s subsequent lockdown but also signal its intention to tackle the systemic weaknesses which have placed our economy at such risk and which threaten to consign our future generations to unwelcome and unnecessary economic and social hardship In economics the problematics of development and underdevelopment is a field of conceptual controversies and constant re comprehension already since classical economists fundamental explorations Nowadays especially within the particularly pressing conditions caused by the global pandemic of COVID 19 it seems that this field of research and scientific knowledge must be profoundly re fertilized in analytical and explanatory terms The current crisis seems to function as a catalyst for various structural changes globally leading to a necessary theoretical reorientation of the related theatics towards exploring the inner evolutionary mechanisms that will drive socio economic development and underdevelopment in the future This article aims to study the conceptual evolution of the notions of development and underdevelopment in the light of modern evolutionary economics which we think could offer a foundational repositioning at the interpretative level in response to the new emerging conditions More specifically this article tries to respond to what development and underdevelopment mean over time where analytical readjustments the evolutionary economics lead to nowadays and whether it is possible to counter propose a multilevel approach that enriches the theoretical background for an interdisciplinary and unifying understanding of the specific problematics at the dawn of the new global reality that appears in the post COVID 19 era At first we look at essential development and underdevelopment concepts by critically exploring corresponding basic definitions throughout time Next we study the essential and associated elements of evolutionary economics in the light of the problematics of development and underdevelopment of our days intending to reach a synthesizing theoretical perspective We counter propose the development web approach and analysis as a useful repositioned perspective on addressing the developmental underdevelopmental problem since the compartmentalization of social sciences between the micro meso and macro approaches seems progressively inadequate and sterile The COVID 19 pandemic gave minimal reaction time to governments around the world While causing millions of deaths it was also detrimental to the global economy This paper is an attempt to understand what we can learn from our experience with the virus with a focus on the United States I discuss good and bad U S policies and the overall performance of institutions involved in pandemic response The approach is economical because it connects what happened with some key economic principles I talk about how markets helped us generate most of the knowledge we have on the virus and I explain how existing regulations slowed down the production and distribution of essential items in the fight against Covid Given the scarce nature of public attention I also discuss the lack of consistent public messaging for the pandemic in the United States
