

The diagram is a complex electrical schematic for a ship's system. It features a central horizontal busbar with numerous connections. Above the busbar, there are several rows of circular components, likely pumps or valves, each with a label. To the right, there are more circular components, some with internal details. Below the busbar, there are two rows of rectangular components, possibly switches or relays, each with a label. The diagram is filled with a dense network of lines representing electrical wires, connecting the various components. Labels are scattered throughout, including 'PUMP', 'VALVE', 'SWITCH', and 'CIRCUIT'. The overall layout is organized into sections, with components grouped together and connected by a common wiring system.
