about her grandmother but Lootie doesn't believe her. The next day Irene goes in search of her grandmother but isn't able to find her and assumes she was dreaming. A few days after she meets her grandmother Irene and Lootie go for a walk. The two wander too far and darkness begins to fall. Just as a group of goblins begins harassing them from the shadows, Curdie, a young miner, comes upon the pair. He scares the goblins away by singing loudly and Irene promises him a kiss at a later date. The next night Curdie decides to stay in the mines earning extra wages to buy a red petticoat for his mother. Curdie overhears a family of goblins talking about how they have very sensitive feet. He follows them to the goblin palace where he learns about the goblins' plan to flood the mine and drown the miners. A season or so passes and the princess gets a prick on her thumb from an old brooch. Her sore quickly becomes infected and Lootie puts her to bed. Irene wakes up in the night and wanders again to her grandmother's tower. Her grandmother heals her with an ointment and Irene falls asleep in her grandmother's bed. Irene wakes in her own bed having promised to go back to the tower Friday night. That Friday night a goblin creature climbs into Irene's window and she runs out of the house into the night. No longer pursued, she turns and sees her grandmother's light in the tower window and follows it home. Irene's grandmother gives her a ring with an invisible thread made from a spider's web. The goblins catch Curdie sneaking into their cavern and Curdie is successful at warding most of them off by stomping on their feet. The goblin queen, however, is wearing stone shoes and manages to capture and imprison him. Curdie is left to starve in the goblin prison but Irene is led to him by her magic thread and she rescues him. Curdie manages to steal one of the goblin queen's shoes on their way out. Following the thread, Curdie and Irene head up to the grandmother's room. Curdie can't see Irene's grandmother and is cross with Irene for what he thinks is a cruel joke. The grandmother explains that Curdie isn't able to believe yet and therefore can't see her. When Curdie arrives home, he tells the whole story to his parents. His mother relates a story from her childhood when a great white pigeon rescued her from a group of goblins. She implies that the royal line has some magical powers and that Irene may have been telling the truth. On another fact-finding mission, Curdie learns that the goblins plan to dig a tunnel into the castle to capture Princess Irene. Upon her capture, they plan to marry her to Harelip, the goblin prince.

legendary theories the king had laid what they thought too severe taxes upon them or had required observances of them they did not like or had begun to treat them with more severity in some way or other and impose stricter laws and the consequence was that they had all disappeared from the face of the country According to the legend however instead of going to some other country they had all taken refuge in the subterranean caverns whence they never came out but at night and then seldom showed themselves in any numbers and never to many people at once It was only in the least frequented and most difficult parts of the mountains that they were said to gather even at night in the open air Those who had caught sight of any of them said that they had greatly altered in the course of generations and no wonder seeing they lived away from the sun in cold and wet and dark places They were now not ordinarily ugly but either absolutely hideous or ludicrously grotesque both in face and form There was no invention they said of the most lawless imagination expressed by pen or pencil that could surpass the extravagance of their appearance But I suspect those who said so had mistaken some of their animal companions for the goblins themselves of which more by and by The goblins themselves were not so far removed from the human as such a description would imply And as they grew misshapen in body they had grown in knowledge and cleverness and now were able to do things no mortal could see the possibility of But as they grew in cunning they grew in mischief and their great delight was in every way they could think of to annoy the people who lived in the open air storey above them
