

Documentary Research Strategy to Research Canada

Documentary Research: Ethnographic ethnography	1. Research aims Documentary Research aims to explore and understand the experiences of individuals and groups in a particular social context. This is achieved through the collection and analysis of documents, which are defined as any written or recorded material that provides information about a particular topic or issue. This can include a wide range of materials, from official records and government documents to personal letters and diaries. The aim of Documentary Research is to use these documents to gain a deeper understanding of the social and cultural context in which they were produced and to explore the ways in which they have been used and interpreted over time. 2. Research design Documentary Research is a qualitative research method that involves the collection and analysis of documents. The design of the research is determined by the research aims and the types of documents that are available. This can involve a range of techniques, from archival research to the use of digital technologies to access online documents. The design should also take into account the ethical considerations of working with documents, such as ensuring that the data is anonymized and that the rights of the individuals and groups involved are protected. 3. Data collection The data collection process in Documentary Research involves the identification and location of relevant documents. This can be done through a variety of methods, including searching archives, libraries, and online databases. It may also involve contacting individuals or organizations who hold documents of interest. Once the documents have been located, they are then collected and organized into a database for analysis. 4. Data analysis The data analysis process in Documentary Research involves the interpretation and synthesis of the information contained in the documents. This is done through a range of techniques, including content analysis, discourse analysis, and narrative analysis. The aim is to identify patterns and themes in the data and to explore the ways in which the documents have been used and interpreted over time. 5. Research findings The research findings in Documentary Research are presented in a report or thesis. This should include a clear statement of the research aims, a description of the research design and methods, a detailed account of the data collection and analysis process, and a discussion of the findings and their implications. The findings should be presented in a way that is accessible and engaging to the reader, and should be supported by evidence from the documents.
