Recent Research on Paul and Slavery John Byron,2008 New Testament scholarship and Paul have had a complicated relationship over the question of slavery For many decades there has been a struggle to reconcile the abolitionist cause with a biblical text that seemingly supports the institution of slavery Then the more recent discovery of inscriptions and documents referring to slaves in antiquity has added new dimensions to the debate Furthermore new interpretative approaches to the New Testament including social scientific criticism rhetorical criticism and postcolonial criticism have challenged earlier interpretations of Paul's statements about slavery The issue has even more recently taken on a new shape as descendants of former North American slaves have engaged with the way Paul has been interpreted and used to justify the enslavement of their ancestors In this volume John Byron provides a survey of 200 years of scholarly interpretation of Paul and slavery with a focus on the last 35 years After a general overview of the history of research Byron focusses in turn on four specific areas African American responses to Paul Paul's slavery metaphors the elliptical phrase in 1 Corinthians 7:21 and the letter to Philemon An epilogue highlights four areas in which scholarship is continuing to change its understanding of ancient slavery and in consequence its interpretation of Paul New Testament students and scholars will find the volume a valuable specialist resource that collects and analyses the most important developments on Paul and slavery    Polycarp John Mench,2024-07-11 Polycarp's story originates in Philippi during the middle of the first century and concludes after the middle of the second century The story involves birth love travel religion and death Polycarp's father Augustus was killed while serving in the Roman Army His mother Dianna was a strong willed woman and didn't remarry She and her attendant Rachael raised Polycarp and his three sisters Polycarp became a priest and a professor He was a student of John's and spent
