Print, Visuality, and Gender in Eighteenth-Century Satire Katherine Mannheimer, 2012-05-23 This study interprets eighteenth century satire's famous typographical obsession as a fraught response to the Enlightenment's ocularcentric epistemological paradigms as well as to a print cultural moment identified by book historians as increasingly visual a moment at which widespread attention was being paid for the first time to format layout and eye catching advertising strategies On the one hand the Augustans were convinced of the ability of their elaborately printed texts to function as a kind of optical machinery rivaling that of the New Science enhancing readers physical but also moral vision On the other hand they feared that an overly scrutinizing gaze might undermine the viewer's natural faculty for candor and sympathy delight and desire In readings of Pope Swift and Montagu Mannheimer shows how this distrust of the empirical gaze led to a reconsideration of the ethics and most specifically the gender politics of ocularcentrism Whereas Montagu effected this reconsideration by directly satirizing both the era s faith in the visual and its attendant publishing strategies Pope and Swift pursued their critique via print itself thus whether via facing page translations fictional editors or disingenuous footnotes these writers sought to ensure that typography never became either a mere tool of or target for the objectifying gaze but rather that it remained a dynamic and interactive medium by which readers could learn both to see and to see themselves seeing Montesquieu en "la bouche de la loi" Karel Menzo
