The flourishing radical press was home to daring literary experiments that embraced themes including empire and economic inequality helping to shape mainstream literature. Reconstructing social and institutional networks that connected middle class writers to the world of working class politics, this book reveals for the first time acknowledged and unacknowledged debts to the radical canon in the work of such authors as Charles Dickens, Thomas Carlyle, Harriet Martineau, and Elizabeth Gaskell. What emerges is a new vision of Victorian social life in which fierce debates and surprising exchanges spanned the class divide.

Hunger Movements in Early Victorian Literature Lesa Scholl, 2016-05-05

In Hunger Movements in Early Victorian Literature, Lesa Scholl explores the ways in which the language of starvation interacts with narratives of emotional and intellectual want to create a dynamic, evolving notion of hunger. Scholl's interdisciplinary study emphasises literary analysis, sensory history, and political economy to interrogate the progression of hunger in Britain from the early 1830s to the late 1860s. Examining works by Charles Dickens, Harriet Martineau, George Eliot, Elizabeth Gaskell, Henry Mayhew, and Charlotte Brontë, Scholl argues for the centrality of hunger in social development and understanding. She shows how the rhetoric of hunger moves beyond critiques of physical starvation to a paradigm in which the dominant narrative of civilisation is predicated on the continual progress and evolution of literal and metaphorical taste. Her study makes a persuasive case for how hunger, as a signifier of both individual and corporate ambition, is a necessarily self-interested and increasingly violent agent of progress within the discourse of political economy that emerged in the eighteenth century and subsequently shaped nineteenth-century social and political life.

Environmental Justice in Early Victorian Literature Adrian Tait, 2023-08-30

This innovative new book combines environmental justice scholarship with a material ecocriticism to explore the way in which early Victorian literature (1837-1860) responded to the growing problem of environmental injustice. As this book emphasises, environmental injustice is simply the convergence of poverty and pollution; it was not an isolated phenomenon but a structural form of inequality, a product of industrial modernity's radical reformation of British society. It particularly affected the working classes. As each chapter reveals in detail, this form of environmental inequality or classism drew sharply critical reactions from figures as diverse as Thomas Carlyle, Friedrich Engels, Charles Dickens, and John Ruskin, and from within the Chartist movement, as working-class writers themselves reacted to the hazardous realities of a divided society. But as this book also reveals, these writers recognised that a truly just society respects the needs of the nonhuman and takes account of the material world in all its own aliveness, even if only tentatively they reached for a more inclusive, emergent form of justice that might address the social and ecological impacts of industrial modernity, an idea which is no less relevant today. This book represents an indispensable resource for scholars and students working in the fields of Victorian literature, environmental justice, and ecocriticism.

Writers, Readers, and Occasions Richard Daniel Altick, 1989

Richard D. Altick, a distinguished scholar of Victorian studies, has during the last thirty years published numerous essays on a wide variety of topics. His insatiable curiosity about nineteenth-century English writers, the people who read their books, and the social and cultural climate of the era informs each essay as he guides readers from an exploding volcano's impact on Victorian poets to the ransacking of the London exhibition business records to the hilarious performance of longtime reactionary member of Parliament one of Punch favorite butts

The Diversity of Victorian Literature Kristin Simon, 2005-07-13 Seminar paper from the year 2005 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 1 Ernst Moritz Arndt University of Greifswald IfAA language English abstract The Victorian Age is marked by enormous changes Mark Twain expressed it this way and yet in a good many ways the world has moved farther ahead since the Queen was born than it moved in all the rest of the two thousand put together Abrams 61993 891 Besides industrial and social changes the era also saw a growth in literature and great authors like Charles Dickens or Oscar Wilde who are still read today Generally the term Victorian marks the time of Queen Victoria's reign from 1837 till 1901 but it is often extended and for many historians it started with the passage of the first Reform Bill in 1832 Since the era comprises about seventy years many drastic changes occurred during this time and the distinguishing characteristics of the individual authors cannot be combined into a general mood Consequently one cannot call it a homogenous period and it is necessary to distinguish it into three different parts Since the transitions were smooth the exact division may differ between historians The early phase is a period of changes and growth but it also saw a depression and demonstrations of workmen In the 1850s the Great Exhibition in 1851 and Darwin's On the Origin of the Species in 1859 can be seen as the beginning of the middle period a time of national prosperity England was the leading industrial power and English confidence was at its high point The late Victorian period covers the last two decades of the century It can be characterized by a general change of the Victorian mood doubts and fear of decay dominated and literature started to shatter into various very different forms This term paper will give a brief overview over the conditions and the literature of the Victorian era The diversity of the age will be shown and explained Therefore each genre will be described separately Furthermore I will summarize the works of major authors and while doing so show the contrasts between them
