

Introduction: What is Democracy?

Democracy is a system of government where the people have the power to make decisions about their country or community. In a democracy, people can vote to choose leaders or laws, make laws directly. The word "democracy" comes from the Greek words demos (meaning "people") and kratos (meaning "power" or "rule").

There are two main types of democracy:

Direct Democracy: In this system, people vote directly on laws and decisions. Everyone has a say.

Representative Democracy: In this system, people choose leaders who will make decisions for them.

Democracy is based on some important ideas:

Equality: Everyone has the same rights to vote and participate.

Participation: People take part in making decisions.

Rule of Law: The government must follow laws, and those laws apply to everyone.

Find an example of a modern direct democracy (where people vote directly on laws and decisions). Like Australia did. This could be a community, a region, or even a local government system.

Example: _____

Explain: How does this direct democracy work? What types of decisions do people make directly?

crowded out Shipps chronicles how Chicago's corporate actors led abetted or restrained nearly every attempt to transform the city's school system then asks whether schools might be better reformed by others To show why city schools have failed urban children so badly she traces Chicago's reform history over four political eras revealing how corporate power was instrumental in designing and revamping the system Her narrative encompasses the formative era of 1880-1930 when teachers unions moderated business plans previously unexplored business activism from 1930 to 1980 when civil rights dominated school reform and the decentralization of the 1980s She also covers the uneasy cooperation among business associations in the 1990s to install the mayor as head of the school system a governing regime now challenged by privatization advocates Business people may be too wedded to a stunted view of educators to forge a productive partnership for change Unionized teachers bridle at the second class status accorded them by managers If reform is to reach deeply into classrooms Shipps concludes it might well require a new coalition of teachers unions and parents to create a fresh agenda that supersedes corporate interests This study clearly shows that in Chicago as elsewhere urban schooling is intertwined with politics and power By reviewing more than a century of corporate efforts to make education work Shipps makes a strong case that it's high time to look elsewhere perhaps to educators themselves for new leadership
