Study Of Human Nature A Reader:

The Study of Human Nature Leslie Forster Stevenson, 2000 Now in a new edition this exceptional anthology provides an introduction to a wide variety of views on human nature Drawing from diverse cultures over three millennia Leslie Stevenson has chosen selections ranging from ancient religious texts to contemporary theories based on evolutionary science An ideal companion to the editor's recent book Ten Theories of Human Nature 3 e OUP 1998 this interdisciplinary reader can also be used independently The Study of Human Nature 2 e offers substantial selections illustrating the ten perspectives discussed in Ten Theories of Human Nature 4 e The Bible Hinduism Confucianism Plato Kant Marx Freud Sartre B F Skinner's behaviorism and Konrad Lorenz's ethological diagnosis of human aggression The Islamic tradition is represented by a selection from the 20th century Iranian philosopher Ayatullah Murtaza Mutahhari The 17th and 18th century philosophers Descartes Hobbes Hume Rousseau and Kant are also represented Selections from Rousseau J S Mill and Nancy Holmstrom discuss alleged differences between women and men and a paper by Henry Bracken deals with racial issues Examples from E O Wilson's sociobiology and his critics are also included together with material from Chomsky and from recent evolutionary psychology This new edition includes more substantial selections from the Hindu Confucian and Christian traditions and provides more accessible extracts from Marx Sartre and Lorenz An excellent reader for introductory courses in philosophy religious studies human nature and intellectual history The Study of Human Nature 2 e is also an essential resource for anyone interested in ancient modern and contemporary perspectives on human nature

The Science of Human Nature William Henry Pyle, 2018-09-02 This statement represents the general scheme well enough but leaves out an important detail The nerve does not extend directly to a muscle but ordinarily goes by way of the brain The brain is merely a great group of nerve cells and fibers which have developed as a central organ where a stimulation may pass from almost any sense organ to almost any muscle But another importance attaches to the brain When a sense organ is stimulated and this stimulation passes on to the brain and agitates a cell or group of cells there we are conscious Consciousness shifts and changes with every shift and change of the stimulation The brain has still another important characteristic After it has been stimulated through sense organ and nerve a similar brain activity can be revived later and this revival is the basis of memory When the brain is agitated through the medium of a sense organ we have sensation

The Science of Human Nature William Pyle, 2014-11-12 The Science of Human Nature A Psychology for Beginners by William Henry Pyle With Class Exercises There are at least two possible approaches to the study of psychology by teacher training students in high schools and by beginning students in normal schools One of these is through methods of teaching and subject matter The other aims to give the simple concrete facts of psychology as the science of the mind The former presupposes a close relationship between psychology and methods of teaching and assumes that psychology is studied chiefly as an aid to teaching The latter is less complicated The plan contemplates the teaching of the simple fundamentals at first and applying them incidentally as the occasion demands

This latter point of view is in the main the point of view taken in the text. The author has taught the material of the text to high school students to the end that he might present the fundamental facts of psychology in simple form. You are beginning the study of human nature. You cannot study human nature from a book; you must study yourself and your neighbors. This book may help you to know what to look for and to understand what you find, but it can do little more than this. It is true, this text gives you many facts learned by psychologists, but you must verify the statements or at least see their significance to you or they will be of no worth to you. However, the facts considered here, properly understood and assimilated, ought to prove of great value to you. But perhaps of greater value will be the psychological frame of mind or attitude which you should acquire. The psychological attitude is that of seeking to find and understand the causes of human action and the causes, consequences, and significance of the processes of the human mind. If your first course in psychology teaches you to look for these things, gives you some skill in finding them, and in using the knowledge after you have it, your study should be quite worth while. This book is written for young students in high schools and normal schools. No knowledge can be of more use to a young person than a knowledge of himself; no study can be more valuable to him than a study of himself. A study of the laws of human behavior, that is the purpose of this book. What is human nature like? Why do we act as we do? How can we make ourselves different? How can we make others different? How can we make ourselves more efficient? How can we make our lives more worth while? This book is a manual intended to help young people to obtain such knowledge of human nature as will enable them to answer these questions. I have not attempted to write a complete text on psychology. There are already many such books, and good ones too. I have selected for treatment only such topics as young students can study with interest and profit. I have tried to keep in mind all the time the practical worth of the matters discussed and the ability and experience of the intended readers.

The Human Nature Club Edward Thorndike, 2015-07-16 Excerpt from The Human Nature Club An Introduction to the Study of Mental Life It goes Without saying that the author is indebted to psychological literature in general so far as he is acquainted With it In particular he is indebted to the writings and teachings of Professor William James who is so often paraphrased in this book The debt to Professor James is so evident that it seems unnecessary to point out the many places Where his formulae have been made to do service Teachers College Columbia University New York December 1900 About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

The Human Nature Club; an Introduction to the Study of Mental Life Edward L. A Study in Human Nature (Classic Reprint) Lyman Abbott, 2017-12-24 Excerpt from A Study in Human Nature The object of this little book is purely practical It is written to aid parents teachers and pastors in their work of character building incidentally too to aid each individual to build himself It grew out of a practical need and was written wholly with a practical end in view Some years ago Dr J H Vincent designed as a part of his Chautauqua University a Chautauqua School of Theology Its object was not to supersede the thorough courses of biblical and theological study pursued in the seminaries but to supplement them to aid pastors in pursuing their studies after they had already entered on their parish work and to enable laymen and others Who were engaged in ministerial or quasi ministerial labor to equip themselves more thoroughly for their work He proposed to incorporate in the curriculum of this Chautauqua School of Theology 3 Department of Human Nature the object of which should be to aid the student in studying man individually and socially human nature in history in fiction in the parish and in society thus enabling him to deal more wisely because more truly scientifically with the problems of individual and social life Dr Vincent asked me to take charge of this department to create and to cultivate it With much misgiving I undertook the task moved thereto partly by a warm personal affection and esteem for Dr Vincent partly by a great respect for the work which he is doing and partly by a special interest in this particular department About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works The Science of Human Nature a Psychology for Beginners (Classic Reprint)
