Studies In Dreams:

Studies in Dreams (Classic Reprint) Mary Arnold-Forster, 2015-07-08 Excerpt from Studies in Dreams I have been asked by the dreamer of these dreams to add a foreword of my own I do not know that I can add anything that will contribute to their interest whether in the way of discussion criticism or interpretation The author of the book modestly makes no claim to be a scientific explorer but only to be a recorder of her own dream experiences who has been impelled to stray a little beyond the province assigned and to attempt some partial explanation of the riddles that are met with But the reader I am sure will find that she has scarcely done herself justice in this diffident attitude for the accurate recording of observations accurately made is the basis of science and requires the development and possession of no common talent Such observations are of much more scientific value than a number of inadequate theories inadequate because based upon only a selected or limited group of facts Moreover these pages are rich in sound comments and discussions of the recorded phenomena which are suggestive of new problems and points of view and the author offers us particularly a well considered new theory of the mechanism of dreams A considerable number of the observations recorded must be regarded as additions to our knowledge and as new data for an adequate interpretation of the mechanism of dreams About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

The Ecosystem of the Foreign Language Learner Ewa Piechurska-Kuciel, Magdalena Szyszk, 2015-03-12 This volume examines selected aspects of the foreign language learning process from an ecological perspective adopting a holistic view on complex interrelations among and within organisms L2 language learners and their milieus family school and society First of all the personal ecosystem of the learner is taken into consideration whereby two powerful influences are intertwined cognitive and affective aspects The learning space formed by the individual is largely shaped by their affective states coexisting in conjunction with their cognitive processes Moreover this specific space is also modified by a wider array of other personal ecosystems or those of cultures Hence the ecosystem of the foreign language learner is also subject to influences coming from sociocultural leverage that can be represented by people they know like parents and language teachers who can both directly and indirectly manipulate their ecosystem At the same time other important forces such as culture as a ubiquitous element in the foreign language learning process also have the power to shape that ecosystem Accordingly the book is divided into three parts covering a range of topics related to these basic dimensions of foreign language acquisition the cognitive affective and socio cultural Part I Affective Interconnections focuses on the body of original empirical research into the affective domain of not only L2 language learners but also non native language teachers Part II Cognitive Interconnections reports on contributions on language learners linguistic processing and cognitive representations of concepts The closing part Socio cultural Interconnections provides new insights into language learning processes as they are affected by social and cultural factors

Dreaming Jennifer M. Windt, 2015-06-05 A comprehensive proposal for a conceptual framework for describing conscious experience in dreams integrating philosophy of mind sleep and dream research and interdisciplinary consciousness studies Dreams conceived as conscious experience or phenomenal states during sleep offer an important contrast condition for theories of consciousness and the self Yet although there is a wealth of empirical research on sleep and dreaming its potential contribution to consciousness research and philosophy of mind is largely overlooked This might be due in part to a lack of conceptual clarity and an underlying disagreement about the nature of the phenomenon of dreaming itself In Dreaming Jennifer Windt lays the groundwork for solving this problem She develops a conceptual framework describing not only what it means to say that dreams are conscious experiences but also how to locate dreams relative to such concepts as perception hallucination and imagination as well as thinking knowledge belief deception and self consciousness Arguing that a conceptual framework must be not only conceptually sound but also phenomenologically plausible and carefully informed by neuroscientific research Windt integrates her review of philosophical work on dreaming both historical and contemporary with a survey of the most important empirical findings This allows her to work toward a systematic and comprehensive new theoretical understanding of dreaming informed by a critical reading of contemporary research findings Windt's account demonstrates that a philosophical analysis of the concept of dreaming can provide an important enrichment and extension to the conceptual repertoire of discussions of consciousness and the self and raises new questions for future research

Dream Cultures David Shulman, Guy G. Stroumsa, 1999-07-08 This volume offers a comparative cross cultural history of dreams The essays examine a wide range of texts concerning dreams as culled from a rich variety of religious contexts China India the Americas classical Greek and Roman antiquity early Christianity and medieval Judaism and Islam Taken together these pieces constitute an important first step toward a new understanding of the differences and similarities between the ways in which different cultures experience the universal yet utterly unique world of dreams
