Enabling Ocean Research in the 21st Century National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Ocean Studies Board, Committee on the Implementation of a Seafloor Observatory Network for Oceanographic Research, 2003-12-14
As the importance of the oceans to society grows so does the need to understand their variation on many temporal and spatial scales. This need to understand ocean change is compelling scientists to move beyond traditional expeditionary modes of investigation. Observing systems will enable the study of processes in the ocean basins over varying timescales and spatial scales providing the scientific basis for addressing important societal concerns such as climate change, natural hazards and the health and viability of living and non living resources along our coasts and in the open ocean. The book evaluates the scientific and technical readiness to move ahead with the establishment of a research driven ocean observatory network and highlights outstanding issues. These issues include the status of planning and development factors that affect the timing of construction and installation, the cost and requirements for maintenance and operations, needs for sensor development and data management, the impact on availability of ships and deep submergence facilities and the role of research based observatories within national and international operational ocean observing systems being developed and implemented.
