Studying Children and Schools David F. Lancy, 2001 Ethics in Social Science

Research Maria K. E. Lahman, 2017-11-27 Ethics in Social Science Research Becoming Culturally Responsive provides a thorough grounding in research ethics along with examples of real world ethical dilemmas in working with vulnerable populations. Author Maria K E Lahman aims to help qualitative research students design ethically and culturally responsive research with communities that may be very different from their own. Throughout compelling first person accounts of ethics in human research both historical and contemporary are highlighted and each chapter includes vignettes written by the author and her collaborators about real qualitative research projects

Ethical Research with Children Ann Farrell, 2005-11 What do we mean by ethics in research with children? What issues and challenges do we need to consider when planning, conducting and evaluating research in an ethical way? What theoretical approaches to children and childhood assist us in doing ethical research? Research with children is occurring within a climate of mounting international interest in listening to and consulting with children in ways that are respectful of them as competent informants of their own experience. This interest has occurred within new times of heightened accountability regulation and surveillance of research. This climate of increased control means that researchers and research gatekeepers are being required to reconsider their approaches to ethics in research with children. Written by international experts in the fields of early childhood research and ethics this book will upskill researchers by dealing with these issues of doing ethical research with children and those around them

Scholarly Resources for Children and Childhood Studies Vibiana Bowman, 2007-02-08 Editor Vibiana Bowman has drawn together contributions from some of the leading scholars in the interdisciplinary field of children and childhood studies CCS in this guided approach to literature searching in CCS. The contributors to this book are both faculty currently teaching in the area of CCS and academic librarians. The charge given to each contributor was to write a chapter that explained the process of scholarly research in his or her own particular area of expertise to a student unfamiliar with that discipline. Towards this end the book provides background information about interdisciplinary study in general and children and childhood studies in particular as well as an outline of basic research practices. Each contributor serves as a mentor and suggests a search strategy, discusses significant concepts and vocabulary and lists the major resources that scholars in that area would be expected to use. Not intended as an exhaustive list of in print research resources rather the emphasis throughout this guide is on useful resources and effective research methodologies. As the field of CCS continues to evolve in the upcoming years Scholarly Resources for Children and Childhood Studies will serve as an excellent stepping stone for those just entering the area.

The SAGE Handbook of Qualitative Research Norman K. Denzin (ed), Yvonna S. Lincoln, 2005 A thoroughly revised updated edition this volume includes new chapters on auto ethnography, critical race theory, queer theory, testimonies

Researching Children's Experiences Melissa Freeman, Sandra Mathison, 2009 This accessible book presents approaches to planning, carrying out and analyzing research projects with children and youth from a social constructivist perspective. Rich contextualized examples illustrate how to elicit and understand the lived experiences of diverse young people. Data collection methods discussed in depth include drawing, photography, the Internet, games, interviewing, focus groups, journaling and observation. Also covered are strategies for fostering the active contributions of children in the research process, navigating consent and ethical issues, enlisting the support of parents, school personnel and other gatekeepers, and interpreting data. Throughout the authors emphasize the need to attend to the social setting in which research with children is done. End of chapter questions and exercises encourage readers to reflect on taken for granted conceptions of children and childhood and to try out the book's ideas in their own research projects.

HIV/AIDS Terror Awakens the Voiceless Orphan Mercy S. Tsiwo-Chigubu, 2006 To President George W. Bush, PM Tony Blair and the European Union lift Zimbabwe's sanctions.

Am I My Brother's Keeper? Anthony Leroy Brown, 2006 Voices from the Street Lori McFadyen, 2004 Past studies about India's street children have been positioned within a universal construct of childhood whereby children are perceived to be vulnerable and innocent and have focused on shared similarities rather than cultural differences or distinguishing attributes. The way in which culture, social values, family circumstances, lived experiences and individual contexts affect the choice street children make is often overlooked. The present study does the work differently. It seeks to understand how street children in India's capital, New Delhi, contend with the obstacles placed before them and how they as social agents go about making life choices At the same time this study investigates the way in which children construct their social organizations make important life decisions and identify themselves in which they exist The specialists activists and generalists interested in the subject will it is believed fine the study informative and useful jacket
