The Decision Is In Your Hand:

Self-Determination Thomas Pink,2016-12-01 Thomas Pink offers a new approach to the problem of free will Do we have control of how we act so that we are free to act in more than one way and does it matter to morality whether we do Pink argues that what matters to morality is not in fact the freedom to do otherwise but something more primitive a basic capacity or power to determine for ourselves what we do This capacity might or might not take the form of a freedom to act in more than one way and it might or might not be compatible with causal determinism What really matters to morality is that it is we who determine what we do What we do must not simply be a function of powers or capacities for which we are not responsible or a matter of mere chance At the heart of moral responsibility is a distinctive form of power that is quite unlike ordinary causation a power by which we determine outcomes in a way quite differently from the way ordinary causes determine outcomes Pink examines how this power is involved in action and how the nature of action permits the operation of such a power to determine it    Mental Actions Lucy O'Brien,Matthew Soteriou,2009-06-11 This volume investigates the neglected topic of mental action and shows its importance for the metaphysics epistemology and phenomenology of mind Twelve specially written essays address such questions as the following Which phenomena should we count as mental actions imagining remembering judging for instance How should we explain our knowledge of our mental actions and what light does that throw on self knowledge in general What contributions do mental actions make to our consciousness What is the relationship between the voluntary and the active in the mental sphere What are the similarities and differences between mental and physical action and what can we learn about each from the other
