Contesting the Monolith Priya Singh,2025-10-24 The book challenges the notion that Israel is a homogeneous state whether in theory or in practice It offers a detailed and critical intersectional analysis of nationalism ethnicity gender and marginality in Israeli society revealing how these forces converge to produce multiple as well as fused identities within a complex social fabric Examining the ruptures and fault lines that shape a multi layered society the study contends that Israel's exceptionality lies not in its self proclaimed Jewish and democratic character but in its resort to exceptional legal and coercive measures to mask internal diversity By obscuring this heterogeneous reality the state cultivates an illusion of a monolithic and uniform Israeli identity The analysis presents a society far more fragmented and stratified than official narratives suggest offering readers an understanding of how intersecting structures of identity and power operate in the Israeli context and how social and political institutions respond to and regulate internal difference This book will be of interest to academic researchers postgraduate and doctoral students and policymakers engaged with questions of nationalism marginality identity and Middle Eastern politics particularly within the disciplines of political science sociology Middle Eastern studies and gender studies

To be an Arab in Israel Laurence Louër,2007 The continuing rise of nationalist sentiments among Palestinians however threw the relationship between the Jewish state and the Arab minority into chaos But as Louer demonstrates Palestinization did not prompt the Arab citizens of

Israel to set aside their Israeli citizenship Rather Israel's Arabs have sought to insert themselves into Israeli society while simultaneously celebrating their difference and these efforts have led to a confrontation between two conceptions of society and two visions of Israel
