Great Walls & Linear Barriers Peter Spring, 2015-02-28 Everyone has heard of the Great Wall of China and knows of Hadrian s Wall and the other barriers lining stretches of Rome s imperial frontiers But Peter Spring s original new study demonstrates that far from being exceptional the building of walls and other linear defences was commonplace among the peoples and states of pre modern era He finds examples virtually all across the globe and analyses their forms and strategic functions He finds patterns for their distribution an important recurrent theme being the divide between settled agriculture and nomads The author argues that it is mistaken to view such undertakings as necessarily purely defensive measures that might be evidence of insecurity or a maginot line mentality as they were in fact often about aggressive assertion of control over a region or strategic routes This original and thought provoking study brings new light and insight to a fascinating and neglected aspect of human political and military history It The clear text is supported by numerous specially drawn maps and photographs

Royal Historical Society Annual Bibliography of British and Irish History Austin Gee, 2001-10-18 The Royal Historical Society s Annual Bibliography of British and Irish History provides a comprehensive and authoritative survey of books and articles published in a single calendar year It covers all periods of British and Irish history from Roman Britain to the end of the twentieth century and also includes a section on imperial and commonwealth history It is the most complete and up to date bibliography of its type and an indispensable tool for historians

Landscapes of War Paul Hill, Julie Wileman, 2002

From the earliest evidence of human aggression to the modern era of sophisticated warfare this book covers the archaeological aspects of war in the landscape using a multi period thematic approach incorporating worldwide material The book discusses the evidence for warfare from Ancient Sumeria to the fall of the Roman Empire in the west and then concentrates on the form and types of defences adopted by different cultures and communities from the level of family projection up to that of national defence using the archaeology of Britain as a major source of evidence Drawing on a wide variety of research including excavated evidence historical sources and in some cases oral testimony the authors analyse the importance of archaeology as a tool for interpretation and take a close look at the influence of terrain in some specially chosen military campaigns across the globe The patterns of warfare which repeat themselves in the forms of arms races and technological advances from prehistory to the present are examined in terms of the cycles of aggressive and defensive measures and case studies are used to exemplify how and why territorial frontiers were held or lost in different eras

AUTHOR Both authors have been involved in teaching historical and archaeological material at the University of Surrey on a Continuing Education degree course as well as undertaking their own research in the field Paul Hill formerly curator at Kingston Museum in Surrey has a background of Anglo Saxon weapons and warfare and Julie Wileman has been researching into prehistoric warfare at UCL and has worked as Assistant Director and Finds Officer at a number of archaeological sites in Surrey
