Stroud Five Stroud Photographers Archive Photographs S:

A 100 Year History of Portrait Photography and the Provincial Photographic Studio Graham Thomas, 2025-10-06 Portrait photography immediately became the mainstay of the commercial photographic business. It was the core money making idea behind photographic studios being established in the early 1840s. Yet very little has been written about the emergence and then the development of the commercial photography business even less about those who operated outside of the major urban centres read London and instead were based in the provinces. This is surprising since a number of these local photographers had a significant impact. Just one example the first portraits of royalty were not taken in London but in Brighton. This led to the Royal Family taking a keen interest in photography which in turn helped boost its acceptance and popularity. A second would be the work of H P Robinson working in Leamington Spa an example of his work is shown at the start of this chapter. A third would be the emergence of colour photography which was championed by a Stroud based photographer. Of equal but rarely mentioned importance is the provincial photographer's crucial role in the recording of people and places thereby providing today's permanent visual record of every aspect of daily life. Something that perhaps is taken for granted because of the ubiquitousness of the picture postcard but they possess what Roland Barthes once called the essence of photography they serve to bring the past into the present. Finally their work led to the democratisation of the photographic image a phenomenon that would impact the lives of everyone and continues to this day. Is there anyone who does not possess a photograph of themselves.
