Abstract: Generations in the 21st century must be prepared to have HOTS literacy competencies and skills. The application of HOTS literacy in the learning process makes students more resilient and able to solve their own problems. This study aims to develop an integrated CBT e-module to improve student literacy HOTS. The resulting e-module has met the valid criteria and has proven to be effective in increasing student literacy HOTS. Student responses to the resulting e-modules are also very positive because the e-modules are designed using the Kvisof Flipbook Maker application which can be opened on laptops, computers or Android devices so that material can be repeated anytime and anywhere as well as HOTS materials and questions, compiled based on CBT to train and improve student literacy HOTS.

1. INTRODUCTION

The development of modernization and globalization of the 21st century has had a tremendous impact. One of the worrisome impacts is the inability of children (students) independently to know, understand, and overcome problems around them. For the Indonesian people, another impact that is felt due to the challenges of modernization and globalization is the low thinking skills of students [1]. The results of the PISA study show that the achievement of reading literacy, mathematical literacy, and scientific literacy achieved by Indonesian students is very low and has only been able to occupy the bottom 10 of 65 countries. Furthermore, based on the 2012 Education for All Global Monitoring Report issued by UNESCO, Indonesian education is ranked 64th out of 120 countries. This is because many test materials are not included in the Indonesian curriculum, especially those related to technological and information advancements. In addition, education in Indonesia still places too much emphasis on the cognitive aspect which is still limited to finding numbers, not students' critical analysis abilities of events encountered in everyday life [2].

The low level of higher order thinking skills (HOTS) is not only experienced by students at the school level, but this also happens to students at the tertiary level. The results of the initial study conducted, it was found that there were still many new students whose higher-order thinking skills were still low, including in the General Chemistry course. The results of the analysis, it was found that most students still had difficulty solving HOTS questions on indicators C4, C5, and C6 [3].

Studying in university should be very different from studying in pre-university schools. Learning at the university does not only provide courses, topics, and strategic concepts, but is also expected to provide a learning experience that allows students' independent learning abilities to develop. Independent learning is learning with your own initiative, responsibility, and effort [4]. However, the main problem in learning in higher education is how to plan and prepare lecturers to manage learning in order to achieve the desired competencies in students [5].

When students are directed to be able to think critically, creatively and able to solve problems, it means that students are targeted to have high-order thinking skills (HOTS) [6]. HOTS is learning designed to prepare the 21st century generation. The 21st century generation must be prepared to have competencies and skills which include: critical thinking and problem solving competence, creativity, communication skills, and the ability to work together [7]. HOTS measures the ability to: a) transfer concepts, b) process and apply information, c) relate different kinds of information, d) solve problems using information, and e) examine ideas and information critically. HOTS is defined as the ability to use the mind to solve problems at hand. Therefore, one must understand, interpret, analyze, and interpret information. HOTS also teaches a person to be critical in evaluating information, making conclusions, and making generalizations. In the revised Bloom's Taxonomy, HOTS is a cognitive ability at the level of application, analysis, evaluation, and innovation [8].

The most important thing in 21st century education is to encourage students to have a deep knowledge base and understanding to be able to become life-long learners. Thus, the education system needs to consider a number of aspects that are domains in 21st century education, one of the most important domains in 21st century education is digital-age literacy. In the 21st century, literacy skills are not only limited to the ability to read, listen, write and speak orally, but more than that, literacy skills are emphasized on literacy skills that are connected to one another in the current digital era [9].

The success of learning, including in higher education, must also be accompanied by the availability of learning tools, including teaching materials. Teaching materials are not only in the form of books or worksheets based on print media. Non-print-based teaching materials can also be used in learning, for example in the form of electronic teaching materials. Currently, electronic-based teaching materials can be easily obtained due to the presence of information technology network devices. Through this information technology network, educators can use it as teaching materials
