

Looking Beyond Structural Adjustment

Structural Adjustment? Have you ever asked yourself the question what are we adjusting from? What are we adjusting towards?

Structural Adjustment from what to what?

Adjustment out of the post-colonial development priorities (1960-1980) towards the options of adjusting to global capitalism and private sector led development (1980-the present)

Post-Colonial Development Strategies	Structural Adjustment (Suited to Private capital)
Nationalization	Privatization
Protection of Labour	Reduction in the power of Labour
State intervention towards equity, protection of vulnerable groups	Rolling back of the state
Pursuit of Social Policies eg. Education, Health, Housing	Reduction in Social Spending due to concerns about an over-burdened Public Sector etc.
Protection/encouragement of local business class	Facilitation of Foreign Investors
Emphasis on Progressive Taxation to facilitate state-directed projects	Emphasis on 'tax cuts' for capital, less emphasis on state-directed interventions and greater emphasis on 'trickle-down' economics and private sector led activities

Social Theory and the Global Environment Ted Benton,Michael Redclift,2013-01-11 This book marks a watershed in the social sciences The qualitative critical perspective of sociology and allied disciplines challenges the technocentric managerialism which dominates environmental policy its discourse and its impact The authors explore the relationship between social theory and sustainability in an attempt to transend technical rhetoric and embrace a broader understanding of nature Africa, Tropical Timber, Turfs, and Trade J. Henry Owusu,2012-08-20 This book examines development issues particularly spatial integration in Sub Saharan Africa regarding its tropical timber trade and the related formal informal operational turf creation control and dynamics Focusing primarily on Ghana Owusu examines the scramble to control the timber trade by various political and socio economic interests from the colonial to the neo liberal era In relation to this Owusu documents the structural and organizational changes that have occurred in the region resulting from national and international development policies such as modernization and neo liberal structural adjustment on industrialization and development and assesses the roles played by powerful international organizations such as The World Bank as agents of economic change The discussion is couched in the critical but often unrecognized or neglected role the discipline of geography and its associated perspectives play in relation to examining and understanding the unequal relationship between the advanced and developing economies and how that relationship affects development and trade behavior of developing economies The core argument made regarding this relationship is tied to the structuralist perspective that Africa s persistent underdevelopment problem is rooted in the very structure of its political economy Based on the discussion Owusu identifies and distills lessons from Ghana s experience for Development policy and practice in Africa and comparable Developing countries in the 21st Century Structural Adjustment Shobha Raghuram,1995 Environmental Implications of temperatures and higher sea levels may lead to displacement and migration and will affect many dimensions of the economy and society. Although scholars are examining the complexity and fragmentation of the climate change regime, they have not examined how our existing international development, migration, and humanitarian organizations are dealing with climate change. Focusing on three institutions—the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, the International Organization for Migration, and the United Nations Development Programme—the book asks how these intergovernmental organizations responded to climate change and are they moving beyond their original mandates given none were established with a mandate for climate change. It traces their responses to climate change in their rhetoric, policy, structure, operations, and overall mandate change. Hall argues that international bureaucrats can play an important role in mandate expansion, often deciding whether and how to expand into a new issue area and then lobbying states to endorse this expansion. They make changes in rhetoric, policy, structure, and operations on the ground and therefore forge, frame, and internalize new issue linkages. This book helps us to understand how institutions established in the 20th century are adapting to a 21st century world. It will be of great interest to scholars and students of International Relations, Development Studies, Environmental Politics, International Organizations, and Global Governance, as well as international officials.
