Structural Change Welfare Systems And Labour Reallocation:

Structural Change, Welfare Systems, and Labour Reallocation Tito Boeri, 2000-10-19 This book studies the interaction between labour and social policies showing the crucial role labour plays in both the scope and the speed of transition By including the influence of education systems institution building and policy enforcement mechanisms this book goes beyond previous studies of the transition experience to provide a detailed analysis of the many contributing factors to the success or failure of the transition process Labor, Employment, and Social Policies in the EU Enlargement Process

Lodovico Pizzati, Bernard Funck, 2002 The process of transition to a market economy and integration into the EU has strained the labour markets of central and eastern European countries and these developments pose a number of challenges to their social policies This volume presents the contributions given at an international labour conference held in Austria in June 2001 to investigate these issues It provides the latest labour trends in EU accession countries and compares them to previous experiences of European integration It reviews existing labour market policies and social protection mechanisms and discusses alternative strategies for employment creation in the region Immigration Policy and the Welfare System

Fondazione Rodolfo Debenedetti, 2002 This book offers a balanced and pragmatic view of the problems associated with international migration It assembles contributions from two teams of leading scholars in the field Part One presents the contribution of the first team which is focused on Europe Part Two is devoted to the contribution of the second team which draws entirely on the US experience The two parts of the volume are self contained and complementary in that they take a different theoretical and empirical perspective For instance Part One delves more deeply into the consequences of allowing migrants to have free access to the generous welfare state of European countries whilst Part Two has more to say on policies repressing illegal migration as there is much more evidence of this in the US than in Europe Much can be learned by comparing the findings of the two parts and in trying to interpret the asymmetries between Europe and the US in migration policies and perceptions of public opinion on this phenomenon The comments on the two parts by Giuseppe Bertola George Borjas Michael Burda and Riccardo Faini as well as the final remarks by Olivier Blanchard Dani Rodrik and Giovanni Sartori offer additional insights in this respect The Labour Market Impact of the EU Enlargement

Floro Ernesto Caroleo, Francesco Pastore, 2010-03-18 Floro Ernesto Caroleo and Francesco Pastore This book was conceived to collect selected essays presented at the session on The Labour Market Impact of the European Union Enlargements A New Regional Geography of Europe of the XXII Conference of the Italian Association of Labour Economics AIEL The session aimed to stimulate the debate on the continuity fracture of regional patterns of development and employment in old and new European Union EU regions In particular we asked whether and how different the causes of emergence and the evolution of regional imbalances in the new EU members of Central and Eastern Europe CEE are compared to those in the old EU members Several contributions in this book suggest that a factor common to all backward regions often neglected in the literature is to be found in their higher than average degree of structural change or more precisely in the hardship they experience in coping with the process of structural change typical of all advanced economies In the new EU members of CEE structural change is still a consequence of the continuing process of transition from central planning to a market economy but also of what Fabrizio et al 2009 call the second transition namely that related to the run up to and entry in the EU

Who's Afraid of the Big Enlargement? Tito Boeri, 2002 The initial enthusiasm of many EU citizens at the return to Europe of former members of the Soviet bloc has turned to anxiety at the realization of the possible adverse consequences of enlargement Potential undesirable effects of enlargement in particular for labour markets and social conditions can be met by appropriately designed policies which are so far not in place or planned Rather than legitimizing such fears politicians and policy makers must dispel them by leading the EU and its members to adopt these measures Enlargement also offers the EU a window of opportunity to accelerate unavoidable reforms of structural policies agricultural policies and their financing These are the premises of this new CEPR Policy Paper The authors outline the key economic and social implications of the prospective accession of the Central and East European countries into the European Union and propose policy recommendations for EU enlargement

Labour Supply and Incentives to Work in Europe Ramón Gómez-Salvador, Ana Lamo, Barbara Petrongolo, Melanie Ward, Etienne Wasmer, 2005-01-01 Labour Supply and Incentives to Work in Europe highlights recent developments in the labour supply in Europe and gives a detailed assessment of their link with economic policies and labour market institutions Despite major changes in European labour supply during the past few decades the existing literature still lacks a comprehensive study of the relationship between labour supply and labour market institutions from a macro perspective

Geographical Labor Market Imbalances Chiara Mussida, Francesco Pastore, 2015-04-29 This book focuses on the questions of how territorial differences in productivity levels and unemployment rates arise in the first place and why territorial differences in labor market performance persist over time Unemployment divergence and unemployment club convergence have been touched on in a large number of works and have recently also been studied using spatial econometric analysis In this book we aim to develop the debate to include several important new topics such as the reasons why structural changes in some sectors cause slumps in some regions but not in others the extent to which agglomeration factors explain regional imbalances the degree of convergence divergence across EU countries and regions the role of labor mobility in reducing increasing regional labor market imbalances the impact of EU and country level regional policy in stimulating convergence and the unsatisfactory role of active labor market policy in stimulating labor supply in the weakest economic areas

The European Labour Market Floro Ernesto Caroleo, Sergio Destefanis, 2006-06-15 This book brings together up to date findings on the regional dimensions of European labour markets It provides a conceptual and empirical study of the interactions between the European economy and its regions paying particular attention to the issue of the transition of Central and Eastern European countries to a market economy The topics analysed include the structure of the shocks affecting employment regional industrial national the relationships between labour market efficiency and the regional distribution of unemployment wage flexibility in EU member countries or in their regions and the role of active labour market policies in affecting the regional distribution of employment and unemployment

Europe Enlarged Irena Kogan, Michael Gebel, Clemens Noelke, 2008-07-16 The expansion of the European Union EU has put an end to the East West division of Europe At the same time it has increased the cultural heterogeneity social disparities and economic imbalances within the EU exemplified in the lower living standards and higher unemployment rates in some of the new member states This important new reference work describes the education systems labour markets and welfare production regimes in the 10 new Central and Eastern Europe CEE countries In three comparative chapters discussing each of these domains in turn the editors provide a set of theory driven comprehensive and informative indicators that allow comparisons and rankings within the new EU member states Ten country specific chapters follow each written by experts from those countries Bulgaria the Czech Republic Estonia Hungary Latvia Lithuania Poland Romania Slovakia and Slovenia These chapters provide detailed information on each country's education and training systems labour market structure and regulations and its provision of formal and informal welfare support An important component of each country chapter is the explanation of the historical background and the specific national conditions for the institutional choices in the transitional years The handbook provides policy makers with the tools to assess the institutional changes in CEE countries and scholars with ways to apply the proposed indicators to their analytic research It will be a vital resource that no major research library should be without Irena Kogan is Professor of Sociology at the University of Bamberg Germany Her main research interests include social stratification immigration and inequality in comparative perspective Michael Gebel is a researcher at the Mannheim Centre for European Social Research MZES Germany His main research interests include labour market sociology especially the school to work transition and the role of atypical employment Clemens Noelke is a researcher at the MZES His scientific interests include comparative labour market research specifically labour market entry dynamics and the labour market consequences of structural change condition for welfare development In industrial democracies differences in the reach and organization of unions presence of Left parties in government and social pacts account for much of the variation in welfare provision among countries Social security is limited in democracies with low levels of industrialization even though some countries with a social democratic orientation seem to have done well Traditions of political rights improvements in electoral competitiveness and a pro active judiciary may empower social movements to pressure governments in low income democracies to introduce progressive social reforms
