Structural Geology And Personal Computers:

Structural Geology and Personal Computers D.G. De Paor, 1996-12-17 This book will help structural geologists keep abreast of rapid changes in work practices resulting from the personal computer revolution. It is organized into six parts I Computer Aided Learning II Microstructural Analysis III Analysis of Orientation Data IV Strain and Kinematic Analysis V Mathematical and Physical Modeling VI Structural Mapping and GIS. The 45 contributing authors explain how to set up computer aided teaching and learning facilities on a low budget, illustrate tectonic strain concepts with a drawing program, integrate multimedia presentations into structural coursework, analyze microstructures with computer aided microscopy, produce sophisticated stereonets with custom software for both the Mac and IBM PC, evaluate orientation data using a spreadsheet program, model the development of macrostructures and microstructures numerically, integrate structural and geophysical data and apply PC technology to the production of structural maps, cross sections and block diagrams. The editor's own contributions reveal the inner workings of his renowned structural research applications which are used in hundreds of universities worldwide. Commercial and non commercial applications of particular interest to structural geologists are reviewed. This volume will prove an invaluable resource for professors, instructors and research students as well as research scientists in the public services and exploration industries. If you are such a person, have you lectured with the aid of a gyroscopic mouse? Or used Bäuerer curves to model heterogeneous deformation? Or analyzed a fold structure using a digital terrain model? If not, you'll need to rush out and buy this book before the next wave of new technology hits.

Davis, Stephen J. Reynolds, 1996-02-02. When author George Davis conceptualized the cover illustration for the first edition of Structural Geology of Rocks and Regions, he wanted to emphasize that the human adventure of learning comes from doing and that new insight springs from careful, detailed examination of field relationships viewed at all scales, from rocks to regions. He asked illustrator David Fisher to combine four photos into the single painting you see here. The geologist is enveloped by challenging structural relationships of folded rocks in outcrop: the curvature of back and neck torqued as eyes and brain move closer and closer to clipboard is the classic language of geologic mapping. When George Davis and new co-author Steve Reynolds contemplated the cover illustration for the second edition of Structural Geology of Rocks and Regions, they asked, "Who else is in the picture?" Stepping back and handing David Fisher a couple of additional photos, the scene suddenly changed. The original geologist, who had been sitting on the outcrop recording data, is now up and walking around, gathering new data. A second geologist has moved into the new foreground, mapping and sketching a system of small-scale imbricate faults. Again, the head is torqued to handle the requirements of fine description and careful mapping Like so many structural geologists she seems to thrive on visualization of three dimensional relationships Geological Sciences Indiana University, Bloomington.
