Structure Process In Southeastern Archaeology:

Structure and Process in Southeastern Archaeology Roy S. Dickens Jr, H. Trawick Ward, 2002-05-14 Within the general structure and process theme of this compendium the authors have focused on either intrasite problems those dealing with the formation and structure of a site type of site or type of feature or intersite problems those dealing with behavioral organization and process as developed from comparative site data These papers from a broad range of specialists present a comprehensive study of southeastern archaeology

The Development of Southeastern Archaeology Jay K.

Johnson, 1993-02-28 Ten scholars whose specialties range from ethnohistory to remote sensing and lithic analysis to bioarchaeology chronicle changes in the way prehistory in the Southeast has been studied since the 19th century Each brings to the task the particular perspective of his or her own subdiscipline in this multifaceted overview of the history of archaeology in a region that has had an important but variable role in the overall development of North American archaeology Some of the specialties discussed in this book were traditionally relegated to appendixes or ignored completely in site reports more than 20 years old Today most are integral parts of such reports but this integration has been hard won Other specialties have been and will continue to be of central concern to archaeologists Each chapter details the way changes in method can be related to changes in theory by reviewing major landmarks in the literature As a consequence the reader can compare the development of each subdiscipline As the first book of this kind to deal specifically with the region it will be valuable to archaeologists everywhere The general reader will find the book of interest because the development of southeastern archaeology reflects trends in the development of social science as a whole Contributors include Jay K. Johnson, David S. Brose, Jon L. Gibson, Maria O. Smith, Patricia K. Galloway, Elizabeth J. Reitz, Kristen J. Gremillion, Ronald L. Bishop, Veletta Canouts, and W. Fredrick Limp

Histories of Southeastern Archaeology

Shannon Tushingham, Jane Hill, Charles H. McNutt, 2002-03-18 This volume provides a comprehensive broad based overview including first person accounts of the development and conduct of archaeology in the Southeast over the past three decades Histories of Southeastern Archaeology originated as a symposium at the 1999 Southeastern Archaeological Conference SEAC organized in honor of the retirement of Charles H. McNutt following 30 years of teaching anthropology Written for the most part by members of the first post depression generation of southeastern archaeologists this volume offers a window not only into the archaeological past of the United States but also into the hopes and despairs of archaeologists who worked to write that unrecorded history or to test scientific theories concerning culture The contributors take different approaches each guided by experience personality and location as well as by the legislation that shaped the practical conduct of archaeology in their area Despite the state by state approach there are certain common themes such as the effect or lack thereof of changing theory in Americanist archaeology the explosion of contract archaeology and its relationship to academic archaeology goals achieved or not achieved and the common ground of SEAC This book tells us how we learned what we now know about the Southeast's unwritten past Of obvious interest to professionals and students of the field this volume will also be sought after by historians political scientists amateurs and anyone interested in the South Additional reviews A unique publication that presents numerous historical topical and personal perspectives on the archaeological heritage of the Southeast Southeastern Archaeology

Handbook of East and Southeast Asian Archaeology Junko Habu,Peter V.

Lape,John W. Olsen,2017-12-08 The Handbook of East and Southeast Asian Archaeology focuses on the material culture and lifeways of the peoples of prehistoric and early historic East and Southeast Asia their origins behavior and identities as well as their biological linguistic and cultural differences and commonalities Emphasis is placed upon the interpretation of material culture to illuminate and explain social processes and relationships as well as behavior technology patterns and mechanisms of long term change and chronology in addition to the intellectual history of archaeology as a discipline in this diverse region The Handbook augments archaeologically focused chapters contributed by regional scholars by providing histories of research and intellectual traditions and by maintaining a broadly comparative perspective Archaeologically derived data are emphasized with text based documentary information provided to complement interpretations of material culture The Handbook is not restricted to art historical or purely descriptive perspectives its geographical coverage includes the modern nation states of China Mongolia Far Eastern Russia North and South Korea Japan Taiwan Vietnam Cambodia Laos Thailand Burma Malaysia Indonesia the Philippines and East Timor

A New Deal for Southeastern Archaeology

The Archaeology of the Cahokia Mounds ICT-II James M. Collins,1990 The Archaeology of Town Creek Edmond A. Boudreaux,Edmond A. Boudreaux (III),2007-11-04 Provides new insights into the community pattern and leadership roles at a major Mississippian archaeological site The sequence of change for public architecture during the

Mississippian period may reflect a centralization of political power through time In the research presented here some of the community level assumptions attributed to the appearance of Mississippian mounds are tested against the archaeological record of the Town Creek site the remains of a town located on the northeastern edge of the Mississippian culture area In particular the archaeological record of Town Creek is used to test the idea that the appearance of Mississippian platform mounds was accompanied by the centralization of political authority in the hands of a powerful chief A compelling argument has been made that mounds were the seats and symbols of political power within Mississippian societies While platform mounds have been a part of Southeastern Native American communities since at least 100 B C around A D 400 leaders in some communities began to place their houses on top of earthen mounds an act that has been interpreted as an attempt to legitimize personal authority by a community leader through the appropriation of a powerful traditional community oriented symbol Platform mounds at a number of sites were preceded by a distinctive type of building called an earthlodge a structure with earth embanked walls and an entrance indicated by short parallel wall trenches Earthlodges in the Southeast have been interpreted as places where a council of community leaders came together to make decisions based on consensus In contrast to the more inclusive function proposed for premound earthlodges it has been argued that access to the buildings on top of Mississippian platform mounds was limited to a much smaller subset of the community If this was the case and if ground level earthlodges were more accessible than mound summit structures then access to leaders and leadership may have decreased through time Excavations at the Town Creek archaeological site have shown that the public architecture there follows the earthlodge to platform mound sequence that is well known across the South Appalachian subarea of the Mississippian world The clear changes in public architecture coupled with the extensive exposure of the site s domestic sphere make Town Creek an excellent case study for examining the relationship among changes in public architecture and leadership within a Mississippian society

The Archaeology of Food and Identity Katheryn C. Twiss,2007 The chapters in this topically and methodologically diverse volume discuss the role food plays in the construction and maintenance of multiple levels of social identity they also illustrate the myriad ways in which archaeologists may approach the issue The book includes essays from archaeologists working in a wide range of time periods and areas prehistorians and historical archaeologists specialists in the Old World and experts on the New World Contributors use diverse data sets to discuss how food procurement strategies consumption patterns and modes of cooking and dining are intertwined with the construction and maintenance of individual and group identities
