The Effect of Parenting on Child and Adolescence Development Yanfang Li, Bin-Bin Chen, Yufang Bian , Wenchao Ma, Lichan Liang, 2025-11-18 Families and parents have the most central and enduring influence on children's lives. Of all the modifiable factors that influence child and adolescent development and life course outcomes, the important role of parenting arouses the interest of many researchers. Exploring the effect of parenting on their children's social, emotional, adjustment, mental health, and academic achievement and its underlying mechanism could provide an extremely important reference for early intervention, prevention, and treatment. Despite a large number of local, national, or international empirical studies in this field, some questions are still open for discussion, such as the underlying mechanism of the association between parents' cognition, parenting practices, and child development under a comprehensive system of parenting in a different demographic, e.g., racial, ethnic, and economic contexts; the changes of parenting accompanied with social change and era development; the interaction of parenting and other factors within family system or other external systems, e.g., school and so on. For this Research Topic, we adopt a broad definition of parenting, including parents' opinions and feelings about their own parenting roles and parents' beliefs, attitudes, socialization goals, and parenting practices toward their children. The main aim is to explore the effect of parenting on child and adolescent development, including self, social, emotional, and academic development, which can help further design effective intervention programs to promote children's and adolescents' positive development via effective parenting. We are particularly interested in manuscripts focusing on the following research subtopics: 1 Theories and underlying mechanisms, mediators, or moderators to explain why and how could parenting affect child and adolescent development; 2 The associations between parenting and child development in different demographic contexts or at different times; 3 The similarities and discrepancies between children and parent report about parenting and its influence on the child and adolescent development; 4 The specific effect of paternal parenting or the effect of co-parenting on child and adolescent development; 5 The potential interaction effect of parenting and other factors, such as teacher, peer, grandparent, and sibling, on child and adolescent development. Quantitative studies, e.g., cross-sectional and longitudinal studies, cohort studies, experimental studies, intervention studies, meta-analysis, and qualitative studies, e.g., interview studies, observational studies, systematic review, are both welcome.

Adult Development Calvin A. Colarusso, Robert A. Nemiroff, 2013-11-22. This volume is about the normal development of adulthood as well as its vicissitudes and the contributions of such development to psychopathology. The authors are psychoanalysts of great clinical skill and perceptiveness, but while their focus is consistently a psychodynamic one, their conceptualizations about adult developmental processes are applicable to virtually all kinds of therapy. It is extraordinary how little attention has been paid to the effects of adult developmental experience on mental development. Obviously, mental structures are not static after the profound experiences of childhood and adolescence, nor are they merely a template upon which adult experiences are processed. The authors clearly demonstrate that current adult experience always adds to and interacts with existing mental structure, which is itself the result of all preceding development.

After a first section in which they examine life cycle ideas on development from antiquity to the present they present their own work as it relates to adult experience and adult development Their hypotheses about the psychodynamic theory of adult development are particularly creative and an enormous contribution to the psychiatric literature and the clinical understanding of patients Consistent with their views that development in adulthood is an ongoing and dynamic process they elaborate their ideas that childhood development is focused primarily on the formation of psychic structure while adult development is concerned with the continued evolution of existing structure and its use
