Llew von Essen
Murray and Roberts

Introduction

I trust that you, like me, are thrilled to be living in what must be considered the most exciting, dynamic and challenging era of this century.

But like you, I am not that naïve to realise that it is an easy one free of problems. Never before in the lifetime of man has the need for a better understanding of communication and culture and their effect on interpersonal relations been so essential.

Intercultural relations hinges on effective intercultural communication and for this to happen it is essential to understand the terms culture and communication.

Culture can be defined as learned behaviours of a group living in a geographical area - i.e., behaviours related to knowledge, values and beliefs, attitudes, religions, concepts of self and the universe, hierarchies of status, spatial relations, time concepts, ethnicity, language, etc. Culture is variable, everchanging, gradually but continuously, and to further complicate understanding, there are individual differences within any given culture. Communication is, of course, the act of communicating — the act of understanding and being understood.

Intercultural communication, therefore, is the act of communication when the message sender is from one culture and the message receiver is from another culture. Successful intercultural communication is the establishment and sharing of common meanings in the sender-receiver. (Meanings are in people, not in messages). This process is obviously complicated and influenced by cultural factors, such as those mentioned above, not to mention language differences and patterns of thinking.

Cultural factor awareness

For successful communication across cultures, there should be an awareness of cultural factors which affect communication in both our own culture and the culture of others. Cultural factors should be looked at for similarities and differences. The differences, thus isolated, would no doubt define problem areas in communicating, and the similarities should aid the successful intercultural communications. Absolute

Sensorimotor Psychotherapy Pat Ogden, Janina

Fisher, 2015-04-27 A book for clinicians and clients to use together that explains key concepts of body psychotherapy The body's intelligence is largely an untapped resource in psychotherapy yet the story told by the somatic narrative gesture posture prosody facial expressions eye gaze and movement is arguably more significant than the story told by the words The language of the body communicates implicit meanings and reveals the legacy of trauma and of early or forgotten dynamics with attachment figures To omit the body as a target of therapeutic action is an unfortunate oversight that deprives clients of a vital avenue of self knowledge and change Written for therapists and clients to explore together in therapy this book is a practical guide to the language of the body It begins with a section that orients therapists and clients to the volume and how to use it followed by an overview of the role of the brain and the use of mindfulness The last three sections are organized according to a phase approach to therapy focusing first on developing personal resources particularly somatic ones second on utilizing a bottom up somatic approach to memory and third on exploring the impact of attachment on procedural learning emotional biases and cognitive distortions Each chapter is accompanied by a guide to help therapists apply the chapter's teachings in clinical practice and by worksheets to help clients integrate the material on a personal level The concepts interventions and worksheets introduced in this book are designed as an adjunct to and in support of other methods of treatment rather than as a stand alone treatment or manualized approach By drawing on the therapeutic relationship and adjusting interventions to the particular needs of each client thoughtful attention to what is being spoken beneath the words through the body can heighten the intimacy of the therapist client journey and help change take place more easily in the hidden recesses of the self
