Women's Diaries as Narrative in the Nineteenth-Century Novel

Catherine Delafield,2016-12-05 Using private diary writing as her model Catherine Delafield investigates the cultural significance of nineteenth century women's writing and reading practices Beginning with an examination of non-fictional diaries and the practice of diary writing she assesses the interaction between the fictional diary and other forms of literary production such as epistolary narrative the periodical the factual document and sensation fiction The discrepancies between the private diary and its use as a narrative device are explored through the writings of Frances Burney Elizabeth Gaskell Anne Brontë Dinah Craik Wilkie Collins and Bram Stoker The ideological function of the diary Delafield suggests produces a conflict in fictional narrative between that diary's received use as a domestic and spiritual record and its authority as a life writing opportunity for women Delafield considers women as writers readers and subjects and contextualizes her analysis within nineteenth century reading practice She demonstrates ways in which women could become performers of their own story through a narrative method which was authorized by their femininity and at the same time allowed them to challenge the myth of domestic womanhood Women, Celebrity, and Literary Culture Between the Wars Faye Hammill, 2007-12-01

As mass media burgeoned in the years between the first and second world wars so did another phenomenon celebrity Beginning in Hollywood with the studio orchestrated transformation of uncredited actors into brand name stars celebrity also spread to writers whose personal appearances and private lives came to fascinate readers as much as their work Women Celebrity and Literary Culture between the Wars profiles seven American Canadian and British women writers Dorothy Parker Anita Loos Mae West L M Montgomery Margaret Kennedy Stella Gibbons and E M Delafield who achieved literary celebrity in the 1920s and 1930s and whose work remains popular even today Faye Hammill investigates how the fame and commercial success of these writers as well as their gender affected the literary reception of their work She explores how women writers sought to fashion their own celebrity images through various kinds of public performance and how the media appropriated these writers for particular cultural discourses She also reassesses the relationship between celebrity culture and literary culture demonstrating how the commercial success of these writers caused literary elites to denigrate their writing as middlebrow despite the fact that their work often challenged middle class ideals of marriage home and family and complicated class categories and lines of social discrimination The first comparative study of North American and British literary celebrity Women Celebrity and Literary Culture between the Wars offers a nuanced appreciation of the middlebrow in relation to modernism and popular culture
