The Methuen Drama Companion to Performance Art Bertie Ferdman, Jovana Stokic, 2020-02-20 The Methuen Drama Companion to Performance Art offers a comprehensive guide to the major issues and interdisciplinary debates concerning performance in art contexts that have developed over the last decade It understands performance art as an institutional cultural and economic phenomenon rather than as a label or object Following the ever increasing institutionalization and mainstreaming of performance the book's chapters identify a marked change in the economies and labor practices surrounding performance art and explore how this development is reflective of capitalist approaches to art and event production Embracing what we perceive to be the oxymoronic status of performance art where it is simultaneously precarious and highly profitable the essays in this book map the myriad gestures and radical possibilities of this extreme contradiction This Companion adopts an interdisciplinary perspective to present performance art's legacies and its current practices. It brings together specially commissioned essays from leading innovative scholars from a wide range of approaches including art history, visual and performance studies, dance and theatre scholarship in order to provide a comprehensive and multifocal overview of the emerging research trends and methodologies devoted to performance art. — Wilton Tamara N. Hoke, 2014

Wilton was incorporated in 1803 when it was a mostly self-sufficient agricultural community. Manufacturing was the backbone of town even before it was fully incorporated and would continue to be until the late 20th century. Early industrial success can be attributed to Wilson Stream which provided waterpower for Wilton's mills. The names of Bass, Butterfield, Furnell, Walker, Robbins and Goodspeed would become well known in Wilton as early entrepreneurs. George Henry Bass entered the shoe manufacturing business in 1876 and started his first shoe shop in 1879. G. H. Bass Co. went on to become a major employer in the area and a nationally known company. The early 1900s was a time of great progress for the town in which the Wilton Academy was accredited, the town library was acquired and the Wilton Woolen Mill was established. Several businesses also emerged on Main Street including the Cony Miller Grocery Store, Mrs. Magrath's Millinery, Holman's Drug Store and Stockford's Drug Store. Today the essence of Wilton is still reflected in its official motto: A great place to live, work, play.
